Products of Local Malleable Castings Co. Have Important Place in Operation of Ohio's Industries

Malleable Iron Turned Out Here Used in Many Factories

PLANT CAPACITY LARGE

90,000 Square Feet of Floor Space Provides Ample Facilities

BY ROBERT BYRD
Marion Star Staff Writer

To many Marionites, malleable castings are little more than a name, yet between 60 and 140 pounds of these castings go into the manufacture of every automobile.

Well known among the manufacturers of malleable castings is the American Malleable Castings Co., 740 West Center st., where pig iron is melted and molded into a hundred different usable articles.

Ordinary cast iron is brittle and often breaks when struck a sharp blow. An iron casting of this nature will not bend. Malleable castings, made of slightly different metal and subjected to an annealing process, are tough and ductile, and consequently enjoy many uses in industry for which cast iron is impractical.

Nearly the equal of steel castings in tensile strength, malleable castings are almost twice as strong as untreated iron castings. Steel castings must be machined before they can be used, as they cannot be molded into as nearly a perfect finish as malleable castings. Much cheaper than steel castings, malleable castings cost but slightly more than ordinary iron castings.

A ready market for its product is found by the American Malleable Castings Co. in manufacturing plants of this state. The castings are usually made to order, and virtually no stock of castings is carried here. Malleable castings are used in the manufacture of automobiles, railroad cars, agricultural implements, trucks, dump bodies, and electrical appliances, according to C. F. LaMarche, vice president and treasurer of the company.

BANDIT BLAST KILLS THREE

Others Expected To Die as Result of Bombing of Payroll Car

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Jan. 14—Every police agency of the state joined forces today in the search for two bandits who obtained $3,000 of a $35,-000 payroll after dynamiting a pay car of the Glen Alden Coal Co., killing three company employes outright, fatally injuring another and injuring three other men, one so seriously that he may die.

The dead:

Arthur E. Webb, 32, Scranton paymaster in charge of the car. Martin Burns, 31, section foreman. Frank Binski, 40, miner. James Shovlin, 32, section foreman.

Frederick W. Pfaff, 60-year-old guard of Scranton, was terribly mangled in the blast. Both of his feet were blown off and he suffered internal injuries. John Sookil, 45, a guard, also suffered minor injuries and Harry Powell, a mine worker, was cut and bruised.

The charge of dynamite was set off by a concealed battery hidden behind a clump of pine trees about 200 feet from the narrow gauge mine railroad track. When the improvised pay car's motor had passed over the section of track to which the battery was wired, the bandits slammed down the lever

District School Oratory Contest To Be Held Here

22 Contestants Representing Five Counties Expected in Vocational Agriculture Public Speaking Competition Set for Jan. 22

Plans are announced by County School Superintendent C. B. Rayburn for the district vocational agriculture public speaking contest to be held Wednesday night, Jan. 22, at Central Junior high school building. Twenty-two contestants from Knox, Morrow, Delaware, Wyandot and Marion counties will take part in the contest, which is supported by the Joseph E. Wing Memorial fund, the Ohio State Department of Education and Ohio State university cooperating. Eight of the contestants are from Marion county schools.

The major purposes of the contest are to stimulate the interest of students of vocational agriculture in rural problems and to prepare students of vocational agriculture for rural leadership by giving them opportunity for training in public speaking.

11 District Contests

District contests will be held in each of the 11 districts of the state represented in the Ohio Association of Vocational Agriculture teachers and a state contest will be held at Ohio State university in connection with the annual Farmers' Week program, Feb. 5, with the state supervisor of Vocational agriculture and the Dean of the College of Agriculture, O. S. U., as the committee in charge.

Arrangements for the contests are in charge of a committee composed of the superintendent of schools or high school principal and the vocational agriculture teacher. The subjects for the contest cover farming and farm life, and discussions, which are limited to 10 minutes, must be original, according to the rules outlined by the committee. Each school is limited to one contestant in the district contest and each district to one contestant in the state contest.

State awards are: First, gold medal; second, silver medal, and third, bronze medal. The district award is a bronze medal.

FEVER IS FATAL TO 2ND TOLEDO WOMAN

Husband of First Victim Expected To Recover from Disease

TOLEDO, Jan. 14—Toledo's second victim of psittacosis, or "parrot fever", Mrs. Catherine Tierney, 67, is dead here today.

Mrs. Tierney was taken to the hospital Jan. 9, when it was believed she was suffering from pneumonia. Examination, however, disclosed that the illness was "parrot fever."

She contracted the disease from a parrot which she was keeping for a friend, the Rev. George A. Brannigan, who was on a trip to South America. During his absence, the parrot died, and Mrs. Tierney soon became ill.

The city's first victim of the disease, which is baffling health commissioners and physicians throughout the country, was Mrs. P. Q. Williams, who died two weeks ago. Her husband is recovering from the disease in a local hospital.

One Dead, Another Dying from Fever

JOHNSTOWN, N. Y., Jan. 14—Mrs. Leon F. Swears, 31, died at her home here today, the first victim in Eastern New York of parrot fever.

Mrs. Swears was taken ill about a week ago after her pet parrot, which had been sick for several days, had been killed.

Mrs. Frances Swears, mother-in-law of the dead woman, who lives in the same house is critically ill with the same disease. Physicians virtually have abandoned hope of her recovery.

Tankage Company Plant Burns; Loss Is $50,000

LONDON, Jan. 14—Fire of undetermined origin early today caused damage estimated at $50,000 to the London Tankage Co. here. Firemen were unable to combat the flames efficiently because there were no fire plugs in the vicinity of the plant, on the outskirts of the town.

SUMMON VOTERS IN ELECTION PROBE

Political Feud Causes Crestline Woman To Tamper with Ballots, Court Learns

BUCYRUS, Jan. 14—Subpoenaes for every Democratic elector who voted in Precinct D, at Crestline, were issued today as the trial of Mrs. Eleanor Blake, presiding judge of the precinct, and her sister, Mrs. Edna Nelson, charged with ballot tampering, entered its second day.

Additional irregularities in the August primaries were revealed in the trial yesterday. In addition to the 69 double marked ballots in the mayoralty election, it was revealed by Prosecutor J. D. Sears that 22 of the 110 Democratic ballots which were cast in he precinct were registered twice in the election for village clerk.

A political feud existed between Mrs. Blake and Mrs. Elizabeth Lindsey, candidate for village clerk, who is alleged to have lost 22 votes by the double marks, it was pointed out at yesterday's session.

MEAT THIEVES

Gang That Robbed Refrigerator Cars Believed Broken Up

CLEVELAND, Jan. 14—A meat thief ring which has been preying on railroads for the past three weeks, was believed broken up today with the arrest of three men here, according to police. More than $10,000 worth of meat has been stolen from railroad refrigeration cars recently.

The "racket," according to police, was for two agents of the ring to board eastbound refrigerator cars, and throw off the meat as the train passed certain crossings. Other members of the gang would pick up the meat and carry it back to Cleveland where it would be sold at reduced prices.

The men under arrest gave their names as Harry Clark, Arthur Carnahan and William Dobson.

15 Defendants in Beer Conspiracy To Be Tried

CLEVELAND, Jan. 14—After more than two years of legal battles in Pennsylvania and Ohio, 15 defendants, five of them from Scranton, Pa., and 10 from Cleveland, figuring in the famous Pennsylvania-Ohio beer ring conspiracy, were today ordered to stand trial here Feb. 17, by U. S. District Attorney Wilford J. Mahon.

Jacob Maher, William V. Loughran, William J. Vincent, Lester Lord, Jr., and William Al Quinn, were named as the Pennsylvania defendants. All were officials of the Anthracite Beer Co., according to Mahon.

The Postmaster's Fleet

The Pope on Education
Charlie Boston Leaves

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

MR. BROWN, postmaster general, suggests a $76,000,000 program [illegible] a fleet of North Atlantic [illegible] for American passengers [illegible]

[The] postmaster demands "a service which could compete with any [illegible] service on the North Atlantic."

Americans will congratulate Postmaster Brown and President Hoover [on] the proposition, and hope that [we] will not only compete with but [excel] every foreign service on the [North] Atlantic and everywhere else. [Why] should a country with the [illegible], from the president [illegible] and with more money than [any] other, ever play second fiddle [illegible] or in the air?

[President] Hoover believes "the [illegible] wish him full success." And he is right. Whoever does [not] wish him success is a poor [American].

[illegible] wish the President success, [illegible] his ability and honor his [illegible] the public welfare, does [not] necessarily involve [illegible] with all methods.

AN important encyclical published [by] the pope in the Osservatore [illegible] denounces the "new natural[ism] [illegible] in school, which denies [illegible] supernatural Christian agency." [illegible] education can be sound, the [pope] says, if it is founded on "negation of original sin."

The pope condemns co-education and sexual education.

The church, according to the pope, is supreme in education, taking precedence over the family and the state.

The pope disagrees with Mussolini, who puts the state first in everything.

The late Charlie Boston, New York Chinese merchant, head of an important "tong," and doubtless in heaven at this moment, neglected no precautions.

Two Chinese bands accompanied him to the grave, to keep away evil spirits, and bits of paper were scattered along the route, perhaps with prayers written on them, to frighten the evil spirits more thoroughly. Two Chinese bands should have sufficed.

Rice, wine and chicken were placed in Mr. Boston's grave with the body, that he might need nothing.

A Presbyterian clergyman, Chinese, read the Christian burial service.

It was planned to have a Taoist priest go through a Chinese ceremony to make sure, but no Taoist priest could be found.

Behind the two Chinese bands marched an Italian band, which played sad dirges.

Few arrive at the heavenly gates with such a good start.

SUGAR FIRMS' ACTIVITIES HIT

Report Says Efforts Made To Stir Up Nations; Hoover Cleared

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14—Efforts of Cuban sugar firms to "stir up hostility to the United States in Latin America" were branded as the most reprehensible of a host of activities of groups working here in connection with a sugar tariff, in a report made to the senate today by its lobby investigating committee.

The report specifically developed that no impropriety was found in activities in connection with which the name of President Hoover was brought into the inquiry.

Correspondence between H. C. Lakin, president of the Cuba Co. and associates, said the report, left the impression that the Cuban government itself was associated in this work.

The report, submitted to the senate in the midst of debate on sugar rates in the pending tariff bill, found the sugar lobby the smoothest working and most liberally financed of any operating here. It contained no recommendations for legislation. In general it was a summation of the work carried on by all the lobbies interested in sugar. Except for Lakin and the organizations working with him, the committee had no censure of the lobbying groups, except insofar as the charge of extensive lobbying work carried a shadow of criticism.

MAYOR IS DEAD

NEW LEXINGTON, Jan. 14—Funeral arrangements for Mayor L. N. Sines of New Straitsville, near here, were incomplete today, pending word from relatives. Sines died late yesterday after a short illness with pneumonia.

LATE NEWS FLASHES

AVIATORS KILLED

COLCHESTER, Conn.—The bodies of Pilot Daniel Marra and Observer William Kirkpatrick who took off Friday morning from Farmingdale, N. Y., were found today in a woods on the shore of Lake Amston. Their plane had been burned, apparently when they crashed. Max Lewally, superintendent of the Amston lake club, discovered the plane today when he started a search in an isolated section somewhat beyond the club house.

POLICEMAN AND 2 BANDITS DIE IN GUN FIGHT

Furious Battle Waged in Chicago Apartment Where Robbers Are Trapped

TRY TO SHOOT WAY OUT

Robbery Victim Sounds Burglar Alarm as He Climbs from Bed

CHICAGO, Jan. 14—Two bandits and a policeman were killed, another policeman was wounded and a third bandit was captured here today in a furious battle in an apartment building where the robbers had been trapped.

The dead are: Patrolman Jerry Murphy, Sam Wolf, bandit, and Al Holzman, bandit.

Police Lieut. Edward Conroy was seriously wounded and Sam Waterman, bandit, surrendered as 20 police guns were trained upon him.

The bandits had entered the apartment of Harry Sucherman, had forced him to open a safe and were about to depart when the police squad arrived. Sucherman had sounded a burglar alarm with his foot as he climbed from his bed.

Bandits' Guns Roar

Lieutenant Conroy and another policeman decided to crash the front door. He detailed Murphy and Patrolman Lynch to the rear of the apartment. Murphy, however, told Lynch: "Go on up front with the lieutenant, he's an old man—I'll handle the rear trick alone."

"Police officers!" roared Conroy. "Surrender!"

Instead the three bandits crept to the rear where Murphy was mounting the steps. Without a word the bandits' guns roared and Murphy fell dead.

Conroy, Lynch and the third policeman opened fire. A hail of lead mowed down Wolf and Holzman. Both died instantly.

Waterman retreated into an apartment.

Ten squads of police arrived on the scene.

Rain was falling in the inky darkness. Conroy, bleeding profusely from a wound in the chest, again roared for the third bandit to surrender.

FEARS FOR AIRPLANE TRANSPORT INDUSTRY

Postmaster General Brown Sees Need for Short "Educational" Flights

CLEVELAND, Jan. 14—The very life of the air passenger transport industry today is in the balance, Postmaster General Walter F. Brown told the chamber of commerce here today. With a paying load of only 10 to 40 per cent of capacity, all transport companies closed the year with operating deficits of heavy proportions, he said.

"Many reasons may be assigned for this unhappy condition which threatens with disaster our high hopes for commercial aviation," Brown said. "My own belief is that the men who were most ambitious for the industry and who, with infinite pains, planned the longer passenger routes, perhaps forgot their own first experience in the air.

"The American public was provided with facilities for flying from coast to coast before any considerable number of people had made sight-seeing flights over their native towns. It is significant that the only air passenger carriers who have apparently been able to make a profit are the ones who have been carrying passengers on short flights of from 10 to 30 minutes.

"If congress, which has always been ready to aid aviation, will give to the postoffice department the authority, and if we have the unreserved cooperation of the air transport industry, we believe a solution is at hand. In our judgment the method of determining the compensation of air mail contractors must be revolutionized. The system of paying by pound regardless of distance traveled is manifestly unsound."

Brown said the department was urging that congress authorize the postmaster general to contract for the transport of mail by aircraft between such points as he may designate at fixed rates not to exceed $1 per mile for 1,500 pounds of mail capacity.

British Land Marines To Quiet Apaia, Samoa

LONDON, Jan. 14—The British cruiser Dunedin today landed a detachment of marines at Apaia, Samoa, to aid the police in enforcing order in the city, according to an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Wellington, New Zealand.

The step was taken because of the intense feeling of unrest prevalent among the natives growing out of their desires for greater political rights.

Man Accused of Murder Takes Stand in Court

CHICAGO, Jan. 14—Radiating confidence, Samuel Howard Dorr, accused of the murder of William O'Brien because of love for the latter's wife, Genevieve, also a murder defendant, took the stand here today in his own defense.

Dorr displayed none of the dejected appearance of last week. He smiled at his wife, the jury and the crowds in the court.

FLOOD WATERS REACH HOMES AT PROSPECT

Families in North End of Village Reported Leaving Dwellings as Scoto Continues Rise; Other Villages Threatened

RIVER OVERFLOW IN GREEN CAMP SCHOOL

Schools in Several Localities Closed; Upper Sandusky Shut Off from South by Road Inundations; Traffic on Highways Blocked

Flood waters that have swept over the banks of the Scioto river in Marion county for more than a week continued to grow more menacing today following a heavy rainfall last night. The Scioto was rising at the rate of an inch an hour at Newmans this morning and at noon passed the high mark of the year which was set last Saturday.

Prospect, Green Camp and LaRue, Marion county villages along the Scioto, were preparing for the worst flood in more than a year today as water crept nearer and nearer to their homes. In some cases water covered the first floors of Prospect houses.

Upper Sandusky was again isolated from the south as the Sandusky river and Tymochtee creek continued to overflow their banks. The town can be reached from Marion by detouring through Harpster.

At the Scioto power plant, Newmans, the river was 11.7 above the normal level and was rising at the rate of an inch an hour. This was at 10 o'clock this morning. Then the water was only two inches below the mark set last Saturday. At noon it went over and continued to rise.

The Scioto is expected to continue to rise for several hours as a result of last night's rainfall of six-tenths of an inch.

The Prospect rd. from Newmans south has been covered for several days. This morning the flood waters were lapping at the edge of the Marysville rd. at Newmans. A two-foot raise will be required to stop traffic on this road, however, it was stated this morning.

Two or three houses are said to be flooded in the north section of Prospect.

Water was over the streets in the business district of Prospect and the high school basement was flooded. The C., D. & M. Electric Co., was still transferring interurban passengers around the Newmans flood area.

Families in the flooded north end of the village have deserted their houses, reports this morning stated. Elm st. in the vicinity of the Baptist church was also threatened.

Water in School Building

Water was over the floor of the high school gymnasium at Green Camp yesterday afternoon. The school is one of three that has not reopened since last week's flood. Basketball practice by the high school team was halted by the flooded gymnasium floor.

LaRue and Agosta schools are also remaining closed. Last week Morral, Meeker and Prospect schools were also closed but have reopened this week, according to C. B. Rayburn, county school superintendent.

Telephone communications between Marion and Green Camp were disrupted this morning. Last night LaRue had its first electrical power for lights since last Thursday's sleet storm reduced power and telephone lines to a mass of wreckage in that vicinity.

Prospect residents who work in Marion were driving west to the Marion-Marysville rd. and then north to Newmans. A further raise in the river threatened to cut off this road this morning.

LaRue residents coming to Marion take route 47 to the Harding Highway. Green Camp and Agosta rds. were closed this morning.

Danger Signs Up

County Surveyor Cecil E. Leavens and A. C. Lamb, county road superintendent, have covered the flood area every day for more than a week. Danger signs have been posted on roads in the flood district.

Roads in the eastern section of the county were open this morning, reports stated. The Bucyrus rd. was also open.

Weather reports give some encouragement to residents of the flood area. The forecast for tonight is: "Cloudy and much colder. Probably rain changing to snow flurries."

The temperature yesterday and last night varied greatly from that of a year ago. High yesterday was 40 degrees and the low was 35. A year ago the low was four degrees below zero and the high was 10 degrees.

Upper Sandusky Situation

For the third time in as many weeks Sandusky River and Tymochtee Creek have overflowed their banks and

'Button Game' Modernized

"Who Has the Evidence?" Is Query as Liquor Case Is Held Up

BUTTON, button, who has the button? That was the game that was being played in probate court this morning. The only variation was that a bottle of alleged whisky was substituted for the button.

The game started when J. A. Hagan, North Main st. soft drink room proprietor, appeared in probate court to answer a charge of illegal possession of liquor. Everything went well until it came time to introduce the evidence, a quantity of alleged whisky.

Then the "evidence, evidence, who has the evidence" game started. The game was still in progress at 11:15 o'clock when the case was continued until this afternoon. In the meantime court officials expected to find an answer to the troublesome question.

The loss of the evidence may be partly due to the smallpox epidemic of recent weeks, it was indicated today.

HAGAN was arrested last December by state prohibition officers and city police. It happened that the arrest was made on the same day that the first floor of the city building, including the police headquarters and the municipal court clerk's office, was under quarantine.

Since the officers did not have access to the police headquarters the evidence was taken to the mayor's office on the second floor of the city building. When the evidence was not brought into court this morning the case was continued until this afternoon to give officials time to locate the missing bottle.

TUNNEY OPERATION PROVES SUCCESSFUL

Former Boxing Champion Rests Well During Night; Recovery Expected

NEW YORK, Jan. 14—Gene Tunney, former world's heavyweight boxing champion, who underwent a successful operation yesterday at the Presbyterian hospital for a kidney ailment, passed a restful night and was reported "in splendid condition" today.

At the hospital today it was stated the former boxing champion had rested well during the night and his sleep had been only slightly disturbed.

The strength and stamina of Tunney stood him in good stead during and after the operation, his physicians said. A rapid recovery was predicted.

Bulletins issued last night stated the patient came through the operation in very good shape and it was expected he will be able to leave the hospital in two or three weeks.

Police After Bandits Who Took $5,000 Gems

CINCINNATI, Jan. 14—Dragnets of local police were thrown out today to catch the two masked bandits who entered the home of Thomas J. Corcoran, retired manufacturer, late yesterday, cut a set of telephone wires and covered Corcoran, a maid and another employe with revolvers while they robbed the home of clothing and jewels valued at more than $5,000.

Floods Continue To Damage Midwest

CHICAGO, Jan. 14—Flood-swollen rivers and tributaries, fed by masses of melting snows and rainfall, continued to do damage today throughout the central states. In many localities families were forced to abandon submerged homes.

Along the Wabash river, in the vicinity of Vincennes, Ind., volunteer crews toiled throughout the night banking crumbling levees that threatened to break under the strain of the swollen streams and flood the city's business and residential section.

Emergency plans have been made at Vincennes to care for hundreds of homeless should the river leave its banks and flood the city.

One hundred families living to the north of Vincennes already have evacuated their homes. Most of the residences are flooded, many of them submerged.

Flood conditions prevailed along the Mississippi river, inundating farm lands and driving scores of families from their homes. In Tennessee, northern Mississippi and northern Arkansas flood conditions that yesterday forced hundreds of residents to flee their homes continued today. Relief workers directed by the Red Cross cared for many of the homeless at Greenshaw, Tenn., Dyersburg, Tenn., and Hickman, Ky.

At many points throughout the flood area workers kept up an all night survey of levees and bridges, fearing additional washouts.

Noted Beauty and Singer Engaged for Weekly Contribution to Radio

Music Hits of the Day Selected for La Palina Offerings

Grace Hyde, Light Opera Soprano, To Be Heard Wednesday

GRACE HYDE, designated by Howard Chandler Christy as one of America's most beautiful women and recently signed by Florenz Ziegfeld for a leading role in his forthcoming extravaganza, "Ming Toy," will add her charming soprano voice to the ether waves, according to an announcement today.

Miss Hyde, known to London theater-goers as Grace Blakely, who won unstinted newspaper praise of her finished performance in Herbert's "The Only Girl" and Lorillard's "Tonight's the Night," will be heard every Wednesday afternoon from 2 to 2:30 o'clock over the Columbia network beginning Jan. 15. Her program will be under the special direction of Claude S. MacArthur, with his "Little Symphony Orchestra."

Following her London engagement she returned to America to rejoin the exclusive Palm Beach colony where her voice and culture at once attracted public attention. As an anticlimax to the importunities of American theatrical and motion picture producers, she was selected in both 1927 and 1928 as the most beautifully gowned woman attending the Everglades club ball.

She was born in the United States, but in her early youth went to the continent, where she has lived the greater part of her life.

Miss Hyde for the past several Palm Beach seasons has charmed the socially elite in song recitals at the homes of Mrs. Edward F. Hutton, Mrs. James Donahue, and Miss William Hayward.

IN DUAL ROLE

Caroline Andrews, above, "the lark" to thousands of radio devotees, leads a double life. In the little town of Astoria, Long Island, where she lives, she is Mrs. Isadore Werner, mother, housewife, and a member of the bridge club.

Miss Andrews is known in every section of the United States through her weekly programs over the National Broadcasting Company system.

REMOVE HOPKINS AS CLEVELAND MANAGER

Written Charges To Be Drawn Against Executive Body Following Dismissal

CLEVELAND, Jan. 14— Written charges against William R. Hopkins, Cleveland's ousted city manager, were to be drawn up today following the executive's dismissal last night by city council.

Voting twice in the most dramatic political spectacle witnessed here since the induction of the city manager form of government, council bowed to the majority power of 12 Republicans and two Insurgent Democrats last night, which voted to suspend the city manager immediately and to make the final date of his removal Jan. 22. The vote was 14 for and 11 against.

Upon Hopkins' demand that charges be filed against him and that he be accorded a public hearing, Mayor John D. Marshall appointed a committee to draw up the charges. The committee meets this afternoon. On Thursday, council will approve them and some time before Jan. 22, Hopkins will be given his hearing.

Burton Guides City

Pending council's election of State Rep. D. E. Morgan—favorite of the councilmanic majority—as Hopkins' successor next Jan. 27, City Law Director Harold Burton will take over the reins of the city.

The public hearing which is to be accorded Hopkins is expected to be a "joker." Council, although required to answer the demands for a hearing, pulled a "fast one" at last night's meeting which aimed to make it impossible for reconsideration of the ouster action. This was done by reconsidering the ouster vote immediately last night—before the hearing and even before the charges had been prepared against Hopkins.

The only way now that Hopkins' retention or dismissal can reach the council again is for his name to be placed in nomination for the post when the selection of a new manager comes up.

Thousands Storm Council

The ouster action was put across last night despite Hopkins' pleading address to the councilmen "not to stain their public careers by treating your manager as a criminal."

"I beg of you," Hopkins said, "not to stain the first page of your record with an act so contemptible; that you do not start out doing something that decent men never do outside of politics."

Thousands of citizens stormed the council chambers last night to witness the ouster proceedings. It was estimated that approximately 7,500 persons jammed city hall—by far the largest group that has ever swarmed a council meeting here.

STATE EXAMINATIONS PLANNED IN DISTRICT

Tests for Highway Department Jobs To Be Held in Bucyrus

Civil service examinations for positions with the state highway department will be held in a number of counties of the state during the latter part of January, according to information received today by Cecil R. Leavens, county surveyor, from the state department.

Among the jobs for which examinations will be conducted are highway superintendent, laborer in charge, assistant engineer, highway inspector, bridge inspector and truck driver.

Bucyrus is one of the cities in which the examinations will be held. Examinations for highway superintendent, laborer in charge and assistant engineer will be held in the courthouse at Bucyrus on Jan. 27. The examination for highway inspector, bridge inspector, and truck driver will be held there the following day.

All examinations will begin at 9 o'clock in the morning.

Interest Centering on Dry Efforts of Congress

Constitutionalists and Drys Deluge White House with Messages of Congratulation on His Proposals: Wets Wait for Opportunity To Attack

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14—While President Hoover was receiving a generally favorable public reaction to the report of his national law enforcement commission, interest today centered on congress where legislation must be enacted to put that body's plan for bolstering up the present "entirely inadequate" federal prohibition enforcement machine into effect.

Constitutionalists and drys flooded the White House with messages of congratulation, on the proposals of the president and his commission, for tighter enforcement.

On the other hand, wet leaders derived much satisfaction from the commission's warning that in any consideration of the liquor problem congress should not forget "the many historical examples of large-scale public disregard of laws in our past." They took heart over the commission's findings of "a staggering number of what might be called focal points of infection," and prepared to renew their drive for modification on the basis of these statements.

Drys Marshal Forces

On Capitol Hill, the prohibitionists were marshaling their forces to spur through the recommended legislation, whereby it is hoped to relieve court congestion, put new teeth in certain phases of the dry law and unify enforcement agencies under the department of justice.

Wets apparently were lying in wait, hopeful they would be able to tear into the Volstead act when the proposed codification of the 25 assorted dry statutes is brought up.

For the present at least, the anti-prohibionists will rally around the resolution of Senator Wagner, Democrat, of New York, calling upon the president's commission to continue its inquiries and determine whether or not prohibition is, in fact, enforceable and whether it should be modified. A somewhat similar resolution has been introduced in the house by Representative Andrew, Republican, of Massachusetts.

Borah is Silent

Meanwhile, Senator Borah, Republican, of Idaho, whose demands for action on the prohibition question brought matters to a head, remained silent on the report of Chairman George W. Wickersham and his associates. In some quarters this silence was interpreted as lack of approval. It was considered certain he would oppose the Wagner resolution, for he has long felt congress can make up its own mind without the aid of ex parte commissions.

Senator Norris, Republican, of Nebraska, chairman of the senate judiciary committee, to which the entire report of the commission was referred, said consideration of the proposals contained therein would begin next Monday. He said he had not yet studied the report and therefore refused to comment or speculate on possible action.

PLANS ANNOUNCED FOR "VICTORY DAY"

W. C. T. U. Prohibition Anniversary Program Set for Thursday

A victory day program to be given Thursday at the home of Mrs. Zoa Davis, 379 Girard av., in celebration of the tenth anniversary of prohibition, is being planned by the Anna Gordon W. C. T. U. The meeting will open at 11 o'clock. Immediately following the ringing the bells at 12 o'clock, the noontide prayer will be offered by the county president, Mrs. Mary Jennings, of this city.

In the afternoon, following a luncheon, the program will be given, as follows:

Victory day song, led by Mrs. A. L. Wood; responsive Bible reading led by Mrs. Ed Ellington; praise and prayer service in song leaflet, "The Best Argument for Prohibition"; song, "U. S. A. Forever Dry, Victory Day's Happy Keynote"; "Law Observance as a Community Asset," the Rev. J. M. Fisher, director of Lee Street Presbyterian church.

Mrs. A. L. Wood will present a song, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. William McKisson. The Rev. E. Radebaugh, of Calvary Evangelical church, will talk on "Law Observance in Our Schools," after which the Rev. George E. Groves, of Central Christian church, will talk on "Benefits of Prohibition."

The Rev. and Mrs. G. G. Canfield and daughter, Catherine, of the Church of the Brethren, will sing. "Why Prohibition?" will be the subject of a talk by the Rev. H. E. Williamson, of Oakland Evangelical church. A talk on "Law Observance in the Home" will be given by the Rev. D. E. Miller, of the Church of the Nazarene.

A children's hour program will be as follows: "Children's Hour," a reading, by Betty Mitchell; piano solo, Ruth Weston; reading, Dorothy Naomi Patrick; piano solo, Robert Haldeman; reading, Mary Emma Patrick; piano solo, Robert Dellinger; reading, Joan Boyd.

ZANESVILLE OFFICER GETS ROBBERY TRIO

Three Youths Arrested Here Taken to Home Town for Hearing

Three Zanesville youths who were arrested by local officers yesterday afternoon after they were reported to have attempted to steal gasoline at the Henry Reiff farm, south of the city, were returned to Zanesville last night by Joseph Petit, Zanesville police chief.

The youths, James Adams, Roy Heck and Fred Rogaun, are said to be wanted in Zanesville for the burglary of a Kroger grocery store. One of the boys admitted that they had burglarized the store, according to Deputy Sheriff Fred Williams who assisted in the arrest.

The boys left Zanesville some time yesterday forenoon. They were arrested about three miles south of the city on the Delaware rd. about 2:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

An attempt to replenish their gasoline supply other than by the usual method proved the undoing of the boys. When they failed to get an answer to their knock at the rear door of the Henry Rieff residence they entered the barn with a five-gallon can and a length of rubber hose and proceeded to syphon gasoline from the tank of the automobile, Mrs. Rieff told officers yesterday.

Officers from the police department and the sheriff's office who answered Mrs. Reiff's call found the boys exploring a deserted farm house a short distance north of the Reiff home. The license plates had been removed from their machine.

The boys admitted burglarizing the Zanesville grocery store after officers found a quantity of groceries in the rear of the machine.

Among the articles in the car were cigarets, chewing tobacco, chocolate bars, gum drops, cakes, a ham, eggs, coffee, breakfast food, shoe polish, catchup, canned goods and small scrub brushes.

DEMAND FOR TRACK REPAIRS REVIVED

Mayor and City Solicitor To Call on C., M. and B. Manager

Condition of the North Main st. tracks of the C., M. & B. Railway Co. was again brought to the attention of city council last night, when Councilman Slack revived discussion of what action the council and Mayor L. Don Jones intend to take in regard to the possible repair of the right-of-way of the railway company on that street.

Mayor Jones stated that he and City Solicitor Carter Patten had planned to interview George Whysall, manager of the company, in regard to his plans for the repair of the pavement between and along the railway company's tracks. Further action awaits the outcome of this interview, which will probably be held this week, he said.

Manager Whysall has been ordered to repair the brick pavement along the tracks by both city council and the state utilities commission, but as yet has not eliminated all of the dangerous sections of disrupted pavement, it is reported.

Tires have been thrown off automobiles and accidents have occurred as the result of the condition of the pavement along the tracks, Councilman Slack stated last night.

BUILDING INSPECTOR POST IS ABOLISHED

Action of Council Expected To Return Tozzer to City Engineer's Office

Office of city building inspector was abolished last night by city council. The position, formerly occupied by Carl Tozzer, will not be continued, in view of the fact that the city has no building code.

The work of sewer inspection, which was also handled by Tozzer, whose title was city building and sewer inspector, has been placed under the service department of the city by a law passed last year by the state legislature.

Present indications are that Tozzer will return to the service department as assistant engineer and will probably have charge of the sewer inspection work in that department. His priority as far as civil service commission requirements are concerned, is established by a leave of absence under which he has been working since he held the office of assistant engineer several years ago.

New Light Ordinance Presented to Council

Proposed contracting ordinance with the C., D. & M. Electric Co. for furnishing street lights to the city of Marion was presented city council last night by W. P. Moloney, president of the company.

The ordinance, which differs but slightly from the former contract with the company for lights, was referred to the street lighting committee, which will investigate the ordinance and compare rates with the former ordinance, which expires on Jan. 31.

The former ordinance was passed in 1920, and was drawn for 10 years. The proposed new contract is for 10 years.

No Word from Party Seeking Rhinelander

LAS VEGAS, Nev., Jan. 14—With no word today from the Kip Rhinelander rescue party, Harley Harmon, the wealthy New Yorker's lawyer directing the efforts to deliver Kip from his snow prison at Camp Charleston, admitted that he was greatly concerned over the young man's plight.

A truck and tractor have been battling the snow barriers for 60 hours and should have arrived at the camp yesterday.

DRIVER CRUSHED

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Jan. 14—Crushed against a tree when the car which she was driving skidded off the icy pavement here early today, Catherine Miller Furey, known to the sporting world as "Bobby" Miller, former champion woman wrestler, was killed. A companion, Mrs. Liza Sreits of Gloucester, was injured.

MOTHER, SON GASSED

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Jan. 14—Mrs. Betty Cole, 28, and her 6-year-old son, Fred J. Olson, Jr., were found dead from asphyxiation early today in a North Hollywood hotel room.

SPLINTER WOUND FATAL

COLUMBUS, Jan. 14—A 2-year-old wound, caused by a wooden splinter, today had caused the death of Jacob Scholl, 78, after blood poisoning had infected the wound in his foot. Scholl died at his home here yesterday.

HOPES TO REACH ENGLAND THURSDAY

Stinson Asks Pilot of Ship To Make Port Sooner Than Planned

BY GEORGE R. HOLMES
Marion Star Staff Writer

ABOARD S. S. GEORGE WASHINGTON, Jan. 14—In an effort to comply with Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson's desire to reach Plymouth on Thursday night instead of Friday as scheduled, the engines of the George Washington turned over at full speed today, driving this liner and the American delegation to the London naval disarmament conference toward England at a fast clip.

Secretary Stimson asked the George Washington's skipper to make Plymouth by Thursday night if possible, in order that he might have another full day for the important preliminary conferences with the heads of the various delegations before the parley gets under way.

The head of the American delegation is scheduled to confer with Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald of Britain, Premier Andre Tardieu of France, Foreign Minister Dino Grandi of Italy and Reijiro Wakatsuki of Japan, in the short space of time intervening between his arrival in England and the start of the conference a week from today.

Canton Bribery Jury Is Being Selected Today

CANTON, Jan. 14—Selection of a jury in the bribery trial of Albert L. Thayer, New Castle, Pa., architect, accused of having sought a $7,500 bribe in connection with the building of the new Molly Stark Tuberculosis sanitarium, got under way here today.

Thayer is specifically charged with soliciting a $7,500 bribe from George Melbourne, head of the construction company which had the general contract for building the $1,000,000 hospital.

Authorities here predict that the trial of Thayer will be one of the most hotly-contested legal battles ever staged in Stark county.

Straus Co. Member Dies in Plunge from Window

NEW YORK, Jan. 14—Herbert Spencer Martin, 45, son-in-law of S. W. Straus and a member of the Fifth av. firm of S. W. Straus and Co., jumped or fell to his death from the bedroom window of his exclusive apartment-residence early today.

He and his wife and their three children were to have sailed today for Egypt. While aboard Martin was to have consulted specialists for a nervous ailment.

Progress of Little Theater Reviewed by Speaker Here

Ewarte Whitworth, of Cleveland, Tells of Rapid Growth of Modern Theatrical Movement in Talk to University Club and Marion Mimes

Ewarte Whitworth, representing the Little Theater of Cleveland, addressed the University club and its guests, the Marion Mimes, last night in the ballroom of Hotel Harding.

In his talk he traced the activities of these dramatic movements in cities over the country, down to the World war, when shortly after this event, the Little Theater began to take on proportions.

"The Cleveland Play House was started in 1916, with a beginning typical of all Little Theater starts. There were three men who got their heads together and decided to form a Little Theater "to encourage art in democracy."

Mr. Drury, a Cleveland art patron, contributed funds to purchase an old church building, and $5,000 in addition was used to build a brick addition at the back of the church.

Later a new building was bought, the beautiful, ultra-modern Cleveland Play House, that turns out splendid performances each year.

Mr. Whitworth spoke of road shows and their gradual decline in favor of the movies.

The opportunity and wish to act brought people into the Little Theater, Mr. Whitworth said. There are 6,000 high school dramatic classes in the United States and 6,000 dramatic clubs. Little Theaters, including those in universities, will number more than a thousand today.

Shakespeare Popular

In 475 Little Theaters during the seasons of 1927-28, 1928-29, the most popular plays were those of Shakespeare. If there were no other good result of the Little Theater movement, the emphasis given to play-writing would be invaluable, he declared. The Little Theater offers opportunities for this that Broadway can never offer.

Preceding his talk, which he followed with the reading of a play, and another reading, Miss Melvina Sunnmers gave two piano numbers, "Lento," Cyril Scott, and "Waltz in A Flat Major," Chopin.

The university club, which is planning for a benefit bridge party Saturday night at the Star auditorium, held its regular dinner meeting last night in the ballroom. A short business session followed the talk.

AUTOIST FINED $100 ON DRINKING CHARGE

Also Loses Driving Rights for 6 Months Following Collision

Frank Smith, 28, of 630 Oak st., was fined $100 and his driving rights were suspended for six months when he pleaded guilty this morning in municipal court to a charge of driving while intoxicated. He was also given a six-month workhouse sentence, which will be suspended if Smith pays for damages done in an accident in which he figured last night.

His car, a Chevrolet sedan, collided with a car said to have been driven by John Lavisi, South Grand av., near Leader and Center sts., last night, according to police. Neither car was badly damaged.

Smith was arrested last night by police shortly after the accident, and was charged with driving while intoxicated in an affidavit filed by Mrs. Zoe Lavisi this morning.

LOUIS E. MEISTER HEADS MUSICIANS

Elected President of Local Federation Branch; Get New Meeting Place

Louis E. Meister, West Walnut st., was elected president of Local 531, American Federation of Musicians, at a meeting last night in the North Main st. hall. Mrs. Goldie Swope was elected vice president and Mrs. Fanny Benson, secretary-treasurer.

Two boards were appointed to serve in the present year. William Fowler, C. W. Davidson, Jacob F. Brokaw, Ned Parshall, and W. S. Allmendinger were named on the executive board.

The examining board included Clarence E. Helfley, Nelson G. Irvin, J. M. Crimm and C. C. Llewellyn.

With the next meeting, Feb. 10, the organization will meet in the new headquarters, the Republican Women's rooms, East Center st.

THIRD OHIO SAFETY CONFERENCE OPENS

2,000 Persons in Attendance at Sessions in Columbus: Davis Will Speak

COLUMBUS, Jan. 14—The third All-Ohio Safety congress opened here today with approximately 2,000 advocates of safety in attendance.

The meeting which is of statewide interest will become nation-wide in its scope when speakers from New York, Wisconsin, Illinois and other states address the different gatherings.

The keynote address of the three-day sessions will be delivered by Secretary of Labor James J. Davis.

Every phase of accidents and their preventives will be thoroughly treated by the delegates, under the slogan, "Safety Is Better Than Compensations."

Gov. Myers Y. Cooper addressed the congress this morning.

JUST AN ILLUSION

An illusion caused by the reflection of light in a house on Reed av. caused a resident of Uhler av. this morning to call out the fire department, which investigated the Reed av. home for fire. No fire was found. Company No. 1 answered the call at 5:27 o'clock this morning.

Cod Liver Oil Influences Hatchability of Eggs
And Is Essential Poultry Ration During Winter Feeding

Cod Liver Oil is a wonderful substitute for Sunshine, consequently its use is essential in rations that are fed during the winter and early spring when hens are confined to the laying house.

Successful poultrymen obtain good results by adding one pint of biologically tested Cod Liver Oil to 100 pounds of mash or scratch feed to the laying hens.

Experiment has proved that birds fed Cod Liver Oil are more healthy, and fertility and hatchability of eggs from these hens is increased.

National League Certain To Bar Art Shires, Heydler Says

BY DAVIS J. WALSH

NEW YORK, Jan. 14—Starting with the off season of 1930-31, Art Shires, the great big adenoidal man of the White Sox, and other ball players who fancy themselves as pugilists, probably will do all of their fighting at home over the breakfast table, President John A. Heydler, of the National league, informed the writer in an exclusive statement today. Baseball, he said, was sure to bar the 'boxer-ball player,' not only as a protection for its investment in the player but to protect the player himself.

"Good," he said, when told that William Wrigley, Jr., had warned Hack Wilson he might be traded elsewhere if he persisted in meeting Shires in the ring, "that's fine. Mr. Wrigley merely is acting within his legal rights, as all contracts expressly state that the player can't indulge in outside sports without the owner's consent. I doubt if that consent has been forthcoming in any instance so far. We could break this up right now, if we didn't feel that the thing was just a phase and had about run its course.

"Anyhow, it had better do all of its running now, for I predict it won't get the chance hereafter."

The National league president claimed to be speaking neither for baseball in general nor for his own organization. He said he was speaking only for "common sense."

"The clause forbidding this activity is in the contract and all we have to do is insist upon it being obeyed," he added. "After what has happened this year, I can't conceive of any owner who won't be very insistent on this point."

He thereupon listed the following as common-sense objections to ball players pretending to be fighters or vice versa, as the case may be:

That so called "bad hands" are both the hallmark of the man who doesn't know how to fight and the end of the ball player's career; that blindness, partial or actual, is not unknown to the ring and that the player so affected would become, perforce, useless to baseball; that, if not otherwise injured, the boxer-ball player jeopardized his health by assimilating body punches that might slow him up on the field of play; and, finally, that his exhibitions were absurdities and, therefore, reacted unfavorably upon the profession he was supposed to ornament.

"We don't want to interfere with the off season activities of our men any more than we can help," said he, "but when these activities threaten our investment in the man and the man himself, it is time to call a halt. It took the Boston club some time and money, for example, to develop young Spohrer. Why should its interest in this man be placed in a compromising position by his thoughtlessness? It is surprising to me the players themselves don't think of this. It has taken them so long to get where they are and yet they want to jeopardize this position for a few dollars.

"They would do well to seek the advice of Frank Frisch, who played basketball one winter and found that the poundings on the hard floor had begun to tell on him by the middle of the following season. Thereafter, he wisely refrained from indulging in an activity that threatened his real livelihood.

"This is common, everyday horse sense but, if our players refuse to think in these terms, they leave us no alternative but to set to and do their thinking for them."

BE SERIOUS ON MIAMI FIGHT!

It's Difficult To Imagine Scott-Sharkey Match. Menke Says

BY FRANK G. MENKE

IF those Madison Square Gardenites do not soon make up their minds about who'll fight Wheezis in Miami in February they will grow goofy from chasing their mental apparatus around in circles.

And folks will accuse them of wearing skirts because skirt wearers, whether long or short ones, have the age-old privilege of changing their minds.

In the beginning of things the boys of the Garden had decided that the Miami festival would feature Jack Sharkey in this corner and Max Schmeling in t'other. But they changed their minds—or the commission did by suspending Max.

NEXT it was to be Jack Sharkey against the winner of the Von Porat-Scott shindig. Scott won—on a foul. The Gardenites concluded that a guy who couldn't do any better than win that way wasn't really fashionable enough to be presented to a Miami audience so they said "git outa our sight" to Scott and Phil sailed back home while the Garden solemnly declared:

"The winner of the Griffith-Risko bout POSITIVELY will meet Sharkey in Miami."

Tuffy won. So the Gardenites went to Boston and told Sharkey they had dug up Mr. Griffith for use as a punching satchel on Miami shores. But Sharkey sniffed—said he wouldn't meet Griffith. Declared Tuffy was entirely too small. The real reason perhaps was that Sharkey figured the gate, in which he would have a percentage interest, would be too small.

SO the Sharkey-Griffith idea was cast hither or yon or some other place that is synonymous with discard.

"However," announced the Gardenites in tones designed to soothe and sustain what they assumed was a sadly disappointed public, "do not despair, dear people, there will be a fight in Miami—and no foolin'."

So they announced Primo Carnera versus Vittorio Campolo and after 3851 folks died from laughing to death over the idea that this would be a "boxing contest" the Garden took to laughing, too, and asked the folks couldn't they take a good joke without getting serious.

* * *

"ALL along," they said, "we have had the real fight right up our sleeve. Here it is."

And they drew out Sharkey versus Scott.

Inasmuch as Scott wasn't good enough for Sharkey after he went moaning to the floor in front of Von Porat, following a smack on the hip, what makes him good enough now?

This is a very delicate query. It one were to put it right into the sound receiving devices of Will Carey, the prexy, and Frank Bruen, the "genman" of the Garden, the boys, having tender feelings of most extraordinary tenderness might get upset.

ON the other hand they might do what many folks figure they will do. And that is yell "April Fool" after a little while, declare that it won't be Sharkey versus Scott at all, no indeed, it will be entirely somebody else.

They do love to fool the public—those dear boys, what with announcing about six different fights and changing their minds and their announcements almost immediately afterward, all of which may be good fun for them—now! But if they don't make up their minds in positive fashion within a few days not even the Miami inhabitants will take whatever brawl announced in serious enough fashion to go over to the arena on February 27th and peek through the knotholes to see if it is all true.

SURPRISE ATTACK GIVES GRIP VICTORY OVER GEORGE SAUER

Local Boys Look Good in 10-Minute Peliminary Match at Shovel Gym

HE may not believe in evolution but Charley Grip, the well known gorilla of the mat game, last night pulled a few surprises generally attributed to the long-tailed residents of the zoo when he defeated George Sauer of Nebraska in the main-go event of Bennie Criswell's wrestling program at the Steam Shovel gym.

It was a wild match filled with excitement from the opening gong and Grip's falls came after Sauer seemed about to batter the ape-man to the canvass.

Stamina and ability to take an almost unlimited amount of punishment branded Grip the better man of the two last night. On Tuesday, or even Friday, Sauer may have been able to defeat Grip; but the match was wrestled last night so it will be necessary to pay off on the bald headed gentleman.

A cradle hill gave Grip the first fall in 31 minutes after a series of flying headlocks and rabbit punches had nearly laid the West Virginian low. Smashing into Sauer like a battering ram, Grip paved the way for the first fall. Sauer wised up on Grip's brilliant acting in the first round and carried the second fall in a 17-minute session of rough battling. A figure-four scissors planted the ape-man after both had taken considerable punishment.

Grip carried on a carefully planned offensive fight to pin Sauer for the third and winning fall in 10 minutes. Sauer again brought the flying headlocks into play gaining a big edge. He had Grip in the corner when the gorilla butted him to the canvass and quickly pinned him.

Billy Barton was given the referee's decision after battling 30 minutes with Jack Rogers. Barton featured toe holds and body scissors in an effort to clinch the match.

The fastest preliminary that has been presented on the local mat this season found Bill Temple and Bill Griffin going to draw decision. Both are local boys who apparently know something about the game.

OHIO GOLFER LEADS LOS ANGELES MEET

Denny Shute, Columbus, Makes Final Bid for First Place

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Jan. 14—Leading his nearest opponent by a margin of three strokes, Denny Shute, the slender young professional from Columbus, Ohio, today was to make his final bid for premier honors in the Los Angeles $10,000 open golf tournament.

Although he was four strokes over par with a 75 for the third round yesterday, Shute had a total of 222 strokes for the 54 holes of play, which was three strokes better than Horton Smith, of Joplin, Mo., and Bobby Cruickshank, of New York.

While not playing sensational golf, Shute so far has been the steadiest in playing a course which has been slowed by rains. Yesterday he was out in 37 and in with a 38.

Smith, a dangerous money player, carded a 76 yesterday, while Cruickshank, winner of the second annual Los Angeles open, shot a 71. The later lost an excellent chance of overtaking Shute when he took a seven on the eleventh hole.

If Shute can fight off Smith and Cruickshank today, he will, unless the unexpected happens, romp off with the Los Angeles open title and the $2,500 prize for the winner.

SHOVELS WILL PLAY BLISS HERE TONIGHT

THE professional basketball season will open in Marion tonight when the Steam Shovels meet the Bliss college quintet at 8:30 o'clock on the Shovel gym.

Winding up practice sessions that have extended over more than a month, the local representative team is in tip top condition for the battle.

The Bliss college five making its first appearance in Marion will fight hard for a victory. It has been meeting some of the strongest Ohio conference quintets so far this year having won a majority of its games.

Former Marion cage stars will be seen at the game. Bud Lewis, who did considerable playing during the 1928 Harding season, holds a forward berth on the Bliss team. Wes Griffin, another graduate of the Marion high school, is the coach of the team.

The contest will mark efforts of Francis Bacon, athletic director of the Steam Shovel plant, to restore professional basketball to its old standing in local sport circles. The pro game has been suffering from fallen arches complicated by low gate receipts for the last five years.

The starting lineup tonight is as follows:

Bliss	Pos.	Shovels
Lewis	R.F.	Penry
Smith	L.F.	Applegett
Lantz	C.	Schwab
Glassman	R.G.	Compton
Kearns	L.G.	Bacon

Contests May Determine Leaders of Early Season

BY JOSEPH K. KUKENBROD

COLUMBUS, Jan. 14 — "Who's who" in Ohio college basketball seems likely to be determined this week, with important clashes on the schedule for tonight and Saturday and 12 games due to be played during the week. The early-season leaders of both the Buckeye and Ohio conferences should be known when the curtain is rung down on the week's performances.

Ohio Wesleyan tangles with the strong Cincinnati five at Cincinnati tonight is one of the high spots of the season's play. Both teams are undefeated and the entertainment should be of the highest calibre. Miami, which has a habit of putting a cog in the championship hopes of the leading title contenders, is outstanding this year. The Big Red meets the tough Ohio Bobcats at Athens Saturday in their first tangle of the 1930 season.

Tonight's battle between the Bishops and Cincinnati should be of intense interest. The two teams held the 1929 Buckeye championship jointly.

Other games in the B. A. A. this week will see Wittenberg and Ohio on the floor at Springfield Friday. The Wesleyan Bishops meet Denison Saturday.

Three defeats have been registered in this league, but no one can deny that every team is still considered in the race. Wesleyan defeated Ohio by only six points. Cincinnati downed Denison by the same margin. Wittenberg bowed to Miami, 30-21 in the only decisive defeat of the season.

Complications confront the best of fans and critics in the Ohio conference, but there are indications that things will be straightened out somewhat this week. The Akron-Wooster game at Akron Thursday and the Akron-Mount Union contest at Alliance Saturday, are placed in the limelight. Akron and Wooster are undefeated. Mount Union has lost only to Wooster.

Two conference games are on the card for tomorrow night. They are Oberlin and Hiram at Hiram and Kenyon and Mount Union at Alliance. Seven games will be played Saturday night.

Things are popping in other parts of the state, with the pan getting warm in the Northwest Ohio conference. Defiance and Bluffton, undefeated in their first contests, meet on the former's floor Thursday. Defiance, defending champion of the conference, is favored to win. Findlay will open its conference campaign against Bowling Green Saturday in the other game of the week in this circle.

Featured by a funnel shaped tube 100 feet long that is mounted on a pivot, a wind power motor with which from 150 to 175 horsepower is generated by electricity is being tried out in California.

PURDUE IS MAKING STRONGEST BID FOR BIG NINE CAGE TITLE

Boilermakers Defeat Northwestern; Michigan Team Defeated by Illinois

CHICAGO, Jan. 14—Eight other Western conference teams today recognized Purdue's bid for the Big Nine basketball title in a very serious light.

Already possessed of a clean record in previous games, the Boilermaker five last night routed the powerful Northwestern quintet, 39 to 22. The rangy team from Lafayette, Ind., required 10 minutes to get started, then they put their scoring gears in high and proceeded to wipe out a Northwestern lead of 11 to 8.

Eighteen additional points went on Purdue's score before Northwestern could add another. Nearly all of Northwestern's shots were made from mid-floor due to the Boilermaker defense.

Michigan's expectations for a chance at the championship received a jolt last night when the alert Illinois five defeated the Wolverines by a 21 to 18 score at Ann Arbor, Mich.

Illinois' defensive work stopped nearly every scoring effort the veteran Michigan team could put forth. Only two men, Truskowski and Captain Chapman were able to score.

The score was deadlocked at 15 once during the second half, but a volley of shots bringing two goals and two free throws broke the tie.

Last night's games leave Purdue, Illinois and Indiana leading the Big Nine standings with perfect records.

OBERLANDER QUITS AS COACH AT STATE

Accepts Position as Head Grid Mentor at Wesleyan University

COLUMBUS, Jan. 14—Andrew J. (Swede) Oberlander, assistant football coach at Ohio State university for the past three years, has accepted a position as head football coach of Wesleyan university at Middletown, Conn.

Oberlander came to Ohio State in 1926 during the reign of Dr. John W. Wilce, under whom he served for two years. He was in charge of the Ohio State reserve team last fall under Coach Sam Willaman.

He was graduated in 1926 from Dartmouth, where he was chosen All-American halfback as a member of that college's undefeated 1925 eleven. He was nationally known for his long and accurate forward passes.

As head gridiron mentor at Wesleyan, he will succeed William W. Wood, who resigned recently. Oberlander will pursue his study of medicine at Yale, which he began at Ohio State, he said.

LAST NIGHT'S FIGHTS

At New York—Al Singer, New York lightweight, won on technical kayo, in third round, over Georgie Day, New Haven.

At Philadelphia—Vidal Gregorio, Spanish bantam, defeated Eugene Huat, Frenchman, (10).

At Rochester, N. Y.—Peter Augats, Bridgeport, Conn., won decision over Sam Bruce, Buffalo welterweight (10).

At Chicago—Harry Dublinsky Chicago, given decision over Ray Kiser Tulsa, Okla. (7).

Packed in sections, a church, a manse and a shop have been sent by steamer to a place in Greeland, within the Arctic Circle. The church, when erected, will be the most northerly in the world.

Singer Scores Technical Knockout Over Day

NEW YORK, Jan. 14—Al Singer, the little buster of beaks from the New York bronx, today had justified in part, at least, claims that he is the foremost contender for Sammy Mandell's world's lightweight title. Singer showed plenty of pepper and punch when he won last night on a technical knockout over Georgie Day, New Haven lightweight, at the St. Nicholas club.

The referee stopped the unequal battle in the third round after Singer had almost put away the New Haven Italian in the first round and forced him to maintain a continued clinch in the second Canto.

Bill Terry Is Holding Out for More Money

NEW YORK, Jan. 14—Billy Terry, New York Giants' first baseman, was reported today to have joined the ranks of the holdouts. Terry, it was said, has demanded a contract calling for a salary of $25,000 a year.

Terry had a batting average last season of .372.

ASHLAND BEATS FINDLAY

ASHLAND, Jan. 14—Ashland college defeated Findlay college here last night, 42-to-33 in a game that featured fast passing and swift breaks for the basket. The half ended 23-17 in Ashland's favor. Johnson and Warstler featured the Ashland attack. Buttermore starred for the losers.

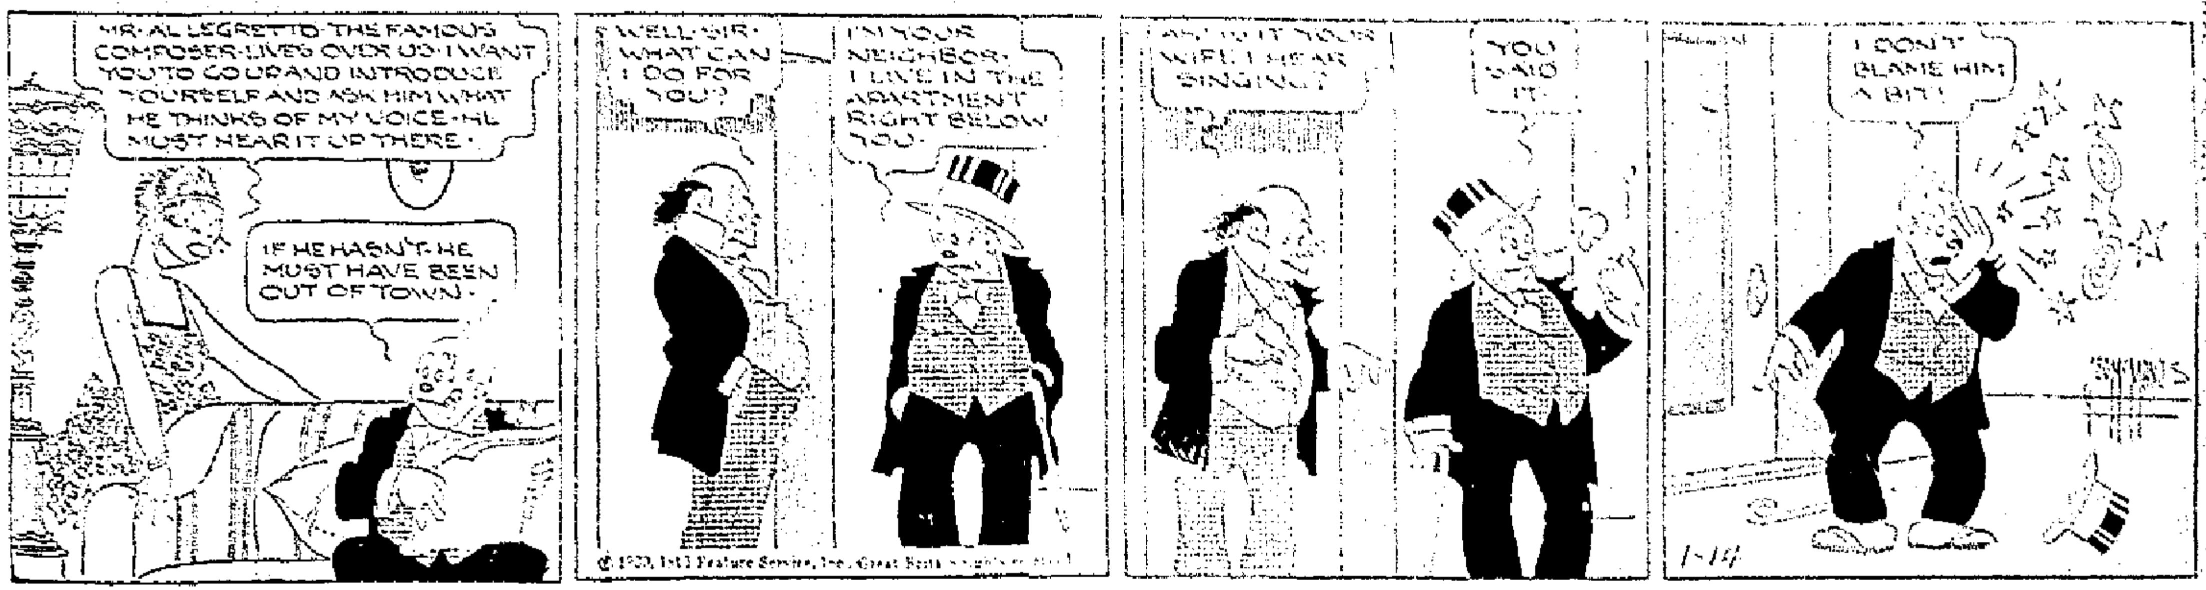
BRINGING UP FATHER

BY GEORGE McMANUS



MR. AL LEGRETTO THE FAMOUS COMPOSER LIVES OVER US - I WANT YOU TO GO UP AND INTRODUCE YOURSELF AND ASK HIM WHAT HE THINKS OF MY VOICE - HE MUST HEAR IT UP THERE -
IF HE HASN'T HE MUST HAVE BEEN OUT OF TOWN -
WELL SIR - WHAT CAN I DO FOR YOU?
I'M YOUR NEIGHBOR - I LIVE IN THE APARTMENT RIGHT BELOW YOU -
AN' IS IT YOUR WIFE I HEAR SINGING?
YOU SAID IT -
I DON'T BLAME HIM A BIT!

WHAT MAKES YOU THINK SO, SALLY?
WELL, HE DIDN'T COME OVER TO MY DESK AFTER HE FINISHED TALKING TO YOU
IT WON'T DO ANY GOOD TO RUSH HIM, SALLY
YEH, BUT HE SAID HE'D BE SEEIN' ME AND I HAVEN'T HEARD FROM HIM ALL DAY
DON'T WORRY - MR. MUNSON IS COMING OUT TO MY HOUSE TONIGHT SO HE'LL SEE YOU THERE!
OH, THAT WILL BE HEAVENLY TO HAVE HIM TAKE ME OVER TO YOUR HOUSE, TILLIE

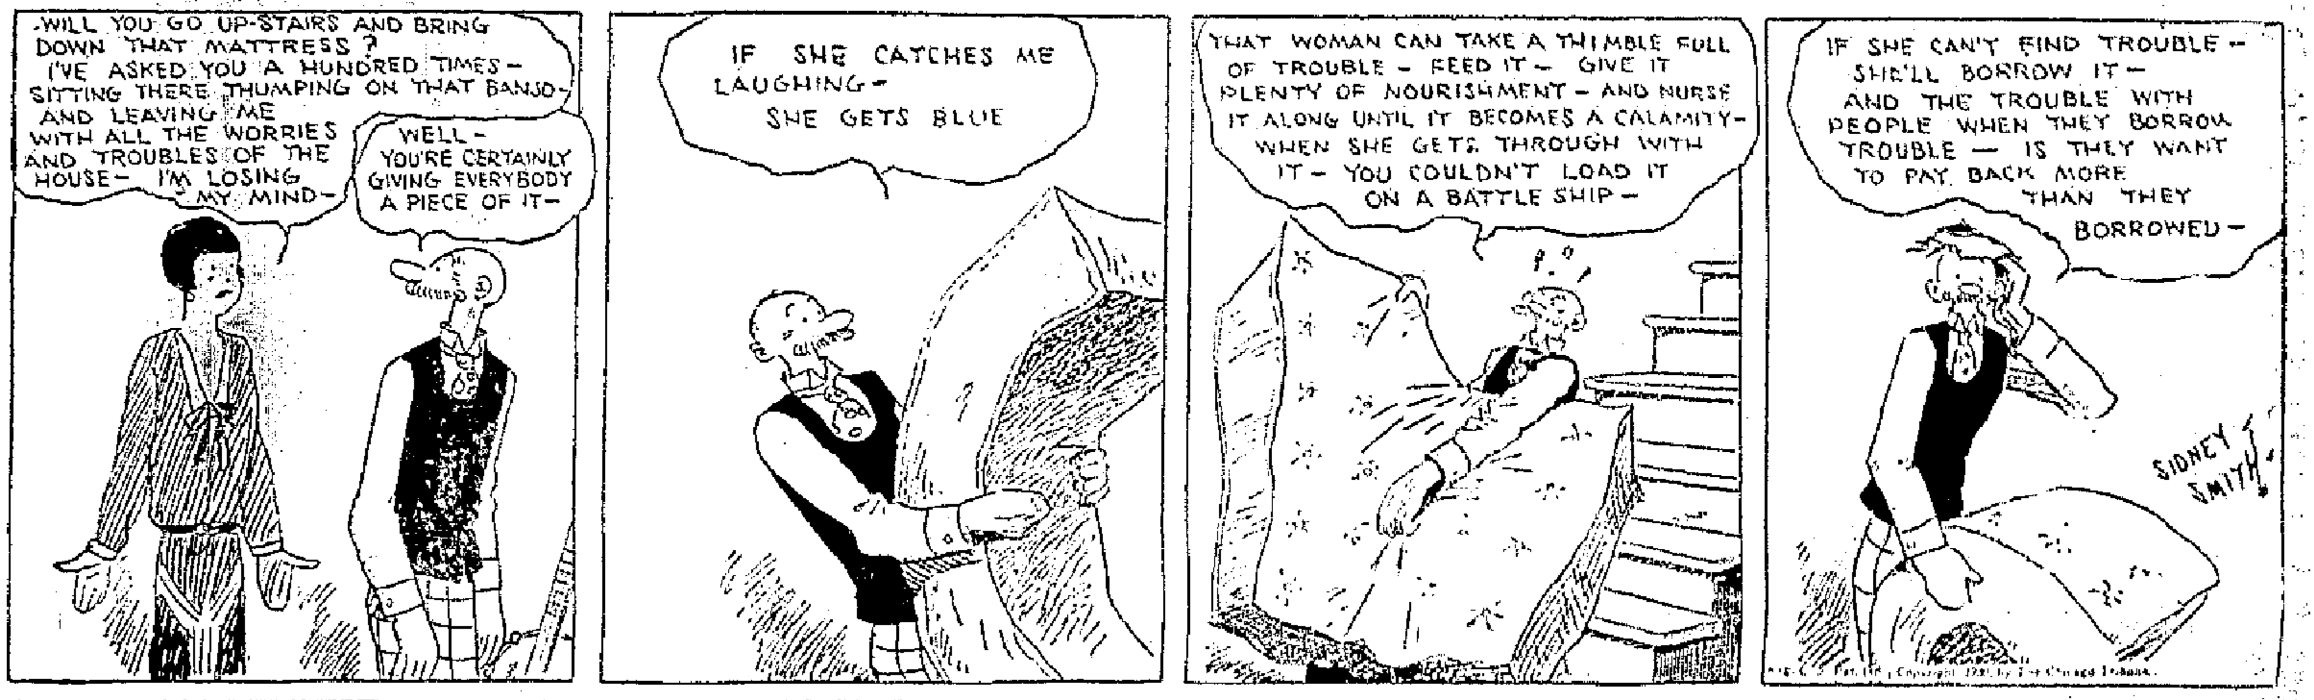
THE GUMPS

BY SIDNEY SMITH



WILL YOU GO UP-STAIRS AND BRING DOWN THAT MATTRESS? I'VE ASKED YOU A HUNDRED TIMES — SITTING THERE THUMPING ON THAT BANJO - AND LEAVING ME WITH ALL THE WORRIES AND TROUBLES OF THE HOUSE — I'M LOSING MY MIND —
WELL - YOU'RE CERTAINLY GIVING EVERYBODY A PIECE OF IT —
IF SHE CATCHES ME LAUGHING — SHE GETS BLUE
THAT WOMAN CAN TAKE A THIMBLE FULL OF TROUBLE — FEED IT — GIVE IT PLENTY OF NOURISHMENT — AND NURSE IT ALONG UNTIL IT BECOMES A CALAMITY - WHEN SHE GETS THROUGH WITH IT — YOU COULDN'T LOAD IT ON A BATTLE SHIP —
IF SHE CAN'T FIND TROUBLE — SHE'LL BORROW IT — AND THE TROUBLE WITH PEOPLE WHEN THEY BORROW TROUBLE — IS THEY WANT TO PAY BACK MORE THAN THEY BORROWED —

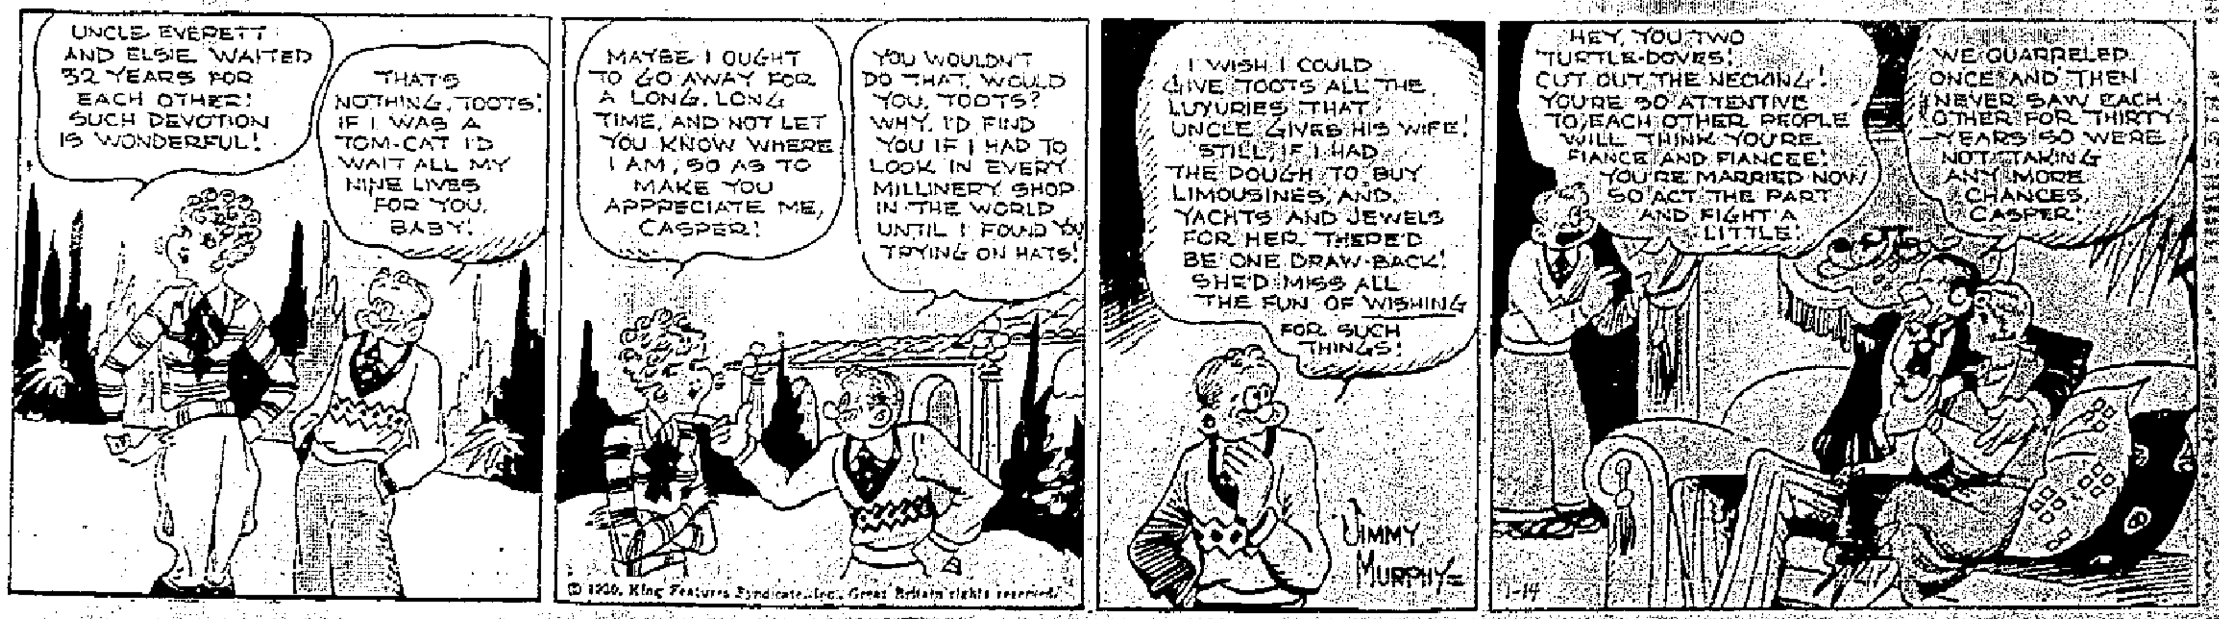
TOOTS AND CASPER

BY JIMMY MURPHY



UNCLE EVERETT AND ELSIE WAITED 32 YEARS FOR EACH OTHER! SUCH DEVOTION IS WONDERFUL!
THAT'S NOTHING, TOOTS! IF I WAS A TOM-CAT I'D WAIT ALL MY NINE LIVES FOR YOU, BABY!
MAYBE I OUGHT TO GO AWAY FOR A LONG, LONG TIME, AND NOT LET YOU KNOW WHERE I AM, SO AS TO MAKE YOU APPRECIATE ME, CASPER!
YOU WOULDN'T DO THAT, WOULD YOU, TOOTS? WHY, I'D FIND YOU IF I HAD TO LOOK IN EVERY MILLINERY SHOP IN THE WORLD UNTIL I FOUND YOU TRYING ON HATS!

Today's Review of Yesterday's Grain

CHICAGO, Jan. 14—Wheat prices continued to decline yesterday. Buying was checked and liquidation and selling stimulated by the unfavorable light cast on the domestic situation by weekly trade statistics and underselling by France and Argentina in foreign markets.

Corn held comparatively steady, though buying and price advances were restrained by weakness in wheat. Oats were a shade easier and rye was weak with wheat.

At the close, wheat prices were 1⅛@1½c lower. Corn was steady to ⅛c higher; oats were ⅛@¼c lower, and rye ⅜@1c off. Liverpool closed unchanged to ⅝d lower and Winnipeg was weaker than the local market, closing 1⅞@2⅛c down.

Quiet Demand Abroad

With demand for wheat very quiet abroad, freer offerings of French and Argentine wheat, Liverpool was weak from the outset, which precipitated heavy selling and a lower range of prices at the local opening. The lack of foreign demand was brought home by an increase of 4,466,000 bu. in on passage stocks out of comparatively light world shipments of 11,344,000 bu.

Active offerings of French wheat were depressing the Liverpool price and Argentine shippers were reported offering wheat 7c per bushel below hard winters. These were the dominant factors in the trade and posting of a healthy decrease in domestic visible supplies, 3,311,000 bu. was followed by a break in prices. Little support was encountered until $1.28 for May, but short covering rallied prices before the close.

Export sales of 300,000 to 400,000 bu. mainly Manitobas, were reported by seaboard. Minneapolis advised that No. 1 northern was selling on the tables at $1.25 the government price.

Winnipeg Weak

With the quiet foreign demand and competitive offers for what business there is brought more keenly to the attention of the trade, more interest was displayed in the relative weakness of the Winnipeg market as compared with Chicago.

This has been in evidence for several days past and in the week their premium has been cut down substantially. This causes considerable anxiety over the possibility that Canada is tiring of a holding policy and may decide to compete, which would make further discomfort for domestic shippers.

Corn continued without feature other than its relative strength in the face of a weak wheat market and its resultant bearish sentiment. Prices eased off at the start, with wheat, but later rallied on light commission house buying. Demand was not aggressive and the firmness was due principally to lack of offerings.

The cash market continued firm, country offerings and arrivals were light and weather still unfavorable for the movement, with predictions from nearby sections that there will be no great run of corn until next month.

Cars of grain received and inspected: Wheat, 30; corn, 294; oats, 29; rye, 4, and barley, 27.

U. S. Bonds

NEW YORK, Jan. 14— Initial transactions in Liberty bonds here today were at the following prices: 4th 4¼'s 101.2; treasury 4¼'s 111.3; Treas. 4's 107.3. Treas. 3⅜'s of '43 99.10; Treas. 3⅜'s of '47 99.20.

At various points in London there are networks of tunnels under the roadways. Under the junction of New Bridge Street and Queen Victoria street, for instance, there are two railway tunnels, one foot passenger subway and a tunnel for gas mains, telephones, etc.

Today in Marion Markets

Groceries, Produce, Meats, Grain, Livestock

Marion markets continued unchanged today, according to reports of grocers.

Meat prices have been undergoing slight changes, but the majority of prices are at normal levels.

With the orange and grapefruit markets well supplied, the prices of these popular fruits are firm, and at normal quotations.

Probable further drop in the price of butter, or a return toward normal prices is expected by the end of the week. Butter is now several cents below its normal winter quotations.

AUTHORIZE BONDS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14—The Interstate commerce commission today authorized the Cleveland Union Terminal Co., of Cleveland, Ohio, to sell $15,000,000 at 4½ per cent first mortgage sinking fund gold bonds at 97½ per cent at par and accrued interest.

Two weeks is the customary vacation. If you take three, you feel like a luxurious person.

FOUR MORE INDICTED MEN ARE SENTENCED

Three Go to Reformatory and One to Penitentiary; Three Change Pleas

Three persons who were indicted by the January grand jury changed pleas of not guilty to guilty yesterday afternoon when they were taken into common pleas court to have dates arranged for their trials. All were sentenced yesterday afternoon by Judge George B. Scofield.

A fourth person, Albert E. Reynolds, against whom an indictment charging forgery was returned, pleaded guilty and was sentenced when arraigned yesterday afternoon. He was sentenced to the Mansfield reformatory for an indeterminate term.

Get Prison Terms

Those who changed their pleas were Forest White, charged with grand larceny, Frank Zane Sams and Chester Elmer Townsend, both charged with burglary. Sams was sentenced to one year in the Ohio penitentiary. White and Townsend were given indeterminate terms in the Mansfield reformatory.

Changes in the pleas of the four leaves only four of the 12 who have already been arraigned who have demanded trials.

Trial dates follow:

Curtis Shepard, charged with automobile stealing, Jan. 16; Harold Austin, charged with forgery, Jan. 17; Sam Jones, charged with carrying concealed weapons, Jan. 21, and Albert B. Cole, charged with forgery, Jan. 22.

Women to Be Arraigned

Hazel Teaple and Florence Ballenger are set to be arraigned on forgery charges.

Three persons who pleaded guilty last Saturday were sentenced yesterday [illegible]

Thomas Banaigan was given a suspended sentence on a forgery charge. Homer Needles, alleged companion of Forest White, was sentenced to the Ohio penitentiary for a year. Darrell Lee was sentenced to the Mansfield reformatory for an indeterminate term on a gun carrying charge.

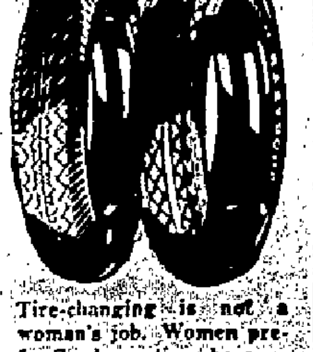
More WOMEN RIDE on Goodyear Tires than on any other kind



Tire-changing is not a woman's job. Women prefer Goodyear tires because they go farther without giving trouble, hold the car more securely on slippery roads and stop safely.
Millions more people ride on Goodyear tires — the percentage of Goodyear-equipped cars increases daily. It's safer, it's cheaper to always buy Goodyears.

Brilliant Performance Is Given by Polish Violinist

Michel Wilkomirski Displays Mastery of Art in Canto Club Concert; William Hughes, Pianist, and Club Chorus Contribute Pleasing Numbers to Entertainment

BY MARY WIRES
Marion Star Staff Writer

One of the outstanding instrumental programs of the season was heard by Marion music lovers last night when the Canto club presented as its guest artist, Michel Wilkomirski, violinist, and his pianist-accompanist, William Hughes, in a concert at the Star Auditorium.

Mr. Wilkomirski is a young Polish violinist and was born in Russia. He was one of the most apt pupils of Mme. S. Joachim-Choizneau, of Paris, an instructor who has had much experience in the musical world and is well known for her work. A few years ago the guest artist made his debut in the states with much success. In April, 1926, Eugene Ysaye, who met him in Paris wrote: "Michel Wilkomirski must become one of the foremost violinists of his time. W. Lucien Capte, who was present at the same recital stated: "This young violinist is one of the most exceptional personalities of our time and one of the most wonderful violinists it is possible to hear."

Wilkomirski seems to be a veritable wizard at a violin in last night's program, making the instrument obey his will. His entire program of selections was an amazing exhibition of quick finger work.

Able Accompanist

His accompanist, William Hughes, has appeared before Marion audiences in several other programs with the Canto club. He presented five piano selections, all of them entirely classical. One of the remarkable facts of his playing was his calm attitude while sitting at the piano. He also showed a marked exhibition of finger work and played two selections that are considered the most difficult for the piano.

The Canto club presented a program of six numbers and was well received by the audience. The club has been keeping in constant practice for the eisteddfod at Ada, O., in February when the club will not only sing one number as a group but will also join the Marion Lecture-Recital club in the contest.

The program for the evening was as follows: "Cherubic Hymn," Tschaikowsky; "At Father's Door," a Russian folk song, the Canto club; "Second Sonata in G Major", Grieg, and an encore number, Mr. Wilkomirski; "Nocturne in C Sharp Minor", Chopin, and "B Flat Minor Scherzo," Chopin, Mr. Hughes; a motette "Your Voices Raise", Handel, and "Land of the Sky Blue Waters", the Canto club; "Variations", Tartini-Kreisler; "Valse", Brahms, and "Tambourin Chinois", Kreisler, Mr. Wilkomirski; "Humoresque", Wladigeroff, "Cradle Song", Palmgren, and "Naila Waltz", Dohnanyi, Mr. Hughes; "Andalusian Romance", Sarasate, "Chanson Arabe", Rimsky-Korsakoff, and "Scherzo-Tarantelle", Wieniawski, Mr. Wilkomirski; and "Absent", Metcalf, and "Prayer of Thanksgiving," by the Canto club.

Ernst C. Carl conducted the concert by the Canto club and was assisted by Grace Cooper, accompanist.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Marian P. Criswell was the daughter of William and Jane (McDonald) Amsley.

Born at Mercersburg, Pa., March 21, 1846, thus reaching the age of 83 years, 9 months and 21 days.

She was united in marriage to John K. Criswell Aug. 18, 1861, who preceded her in death 16 years ago.

The most prominent characteristic in the life of the deceased Mother, the spirit of helpfulness and generosity, the desire to make some one comfortable and happy, the desire to lend a helping hand and it is a thought which those of us left may well emulate.

She shed her cheerful rays about in pleasant words and smiling greetings and let her sweet memory fresh in the affections of her friends whom she served and loved so well.

Peaceful be thy silent slumber,
Peaceful in thy grave, so low,
Thou no more will join our number,
Thou no more our sorrow know.
Yet again we hope to meet thee;
When the day of life is fled,
And in Heaven with joy to greet thee,
Where no farewell tears are shed.

MRS. ALICE B. FISH DIES AT BARBERTON

Green Camp Resident Victim of Influenza; Funeral To Be Thursday

Will Russia Be Able to Shift Its Backward, Farming Peasants Into Modernized and Mechanized People Overnight? Hunt Asks 152,000,000 Must Teach Old-Fashioned Hands To Do Modern Things!

Famous Writer Declares "Something" Will Break Audacious Dream

Production in New Plants Cannot Be More Than 25 Per Cent at Start

(Editor's Note: This is the second of the series of six articles on conditions in Soviet Russia of today which Frazier Hunt, famous war correspondent and magazine writer, has written especially for The Star and other International News Service clients.)

BY FRAZIER HUNT

(Copyright, 1930, by I. N. S.)

LONDON, Jan. 13—Today Russia, with American help, is doing business. She is a going concern. Despite terrific unrest and hate of the richer peasants—the despised "kulaks"—despite a sullen discontent and a vast disillusionment among millions—despite all the insurmountable difficulties that are the inheritance of 15 years of continuous war and revolution, Soviet Russia is forging ahead.

She has finished her old "intellectual" revolution. Today she has a "practical" revolution, a "physical" revolution. Lenin and his followers believed that once they could capture the factories for the city workmen, and the land for the peasants, they could put over a successful revolution. But they found they could not run the factories; managerial sabotage, civil war, foreign intervention and the blockade, coupled with the heart-breaking famine of 1920-21 was too much. Hard and fast communism was swung into a new economic policy that permitted the small trader, the little factory owner and the richer, more intelligent peasant to prosper. A new capitalism began to take root. Communistic principles were being swept aside and threatened.

Then with the death of Lenin, a newer, harder group took control. The new economic policy was condemned; the private trader crushed; the rich peasant ordered to be ostracized and broken and a new Russia dreamed of in a great five-year industrial plan.

Every phase of life was touched by the stupendous, audacious plan. It started Oct. 1, 1928—and already it is far ahead of its schedule. Russia is building factories and mills, and power plants and great agricultural schemes. She is putting more bricks on bricks than all the rest of continental Europe put together.

She will carry out the building operation of this gigantic five-year plan. But when she gets all this built how efficiently can she operate it? This is the crux of the Soviet problem—at least for this decade.

Will Fulfill Plans

Let me repeat: the Soviet union will carry out the building plans of the five-year period. And more: nothing short of a terrific and devastating famine can retard her from doing it in even less time than her original estimates. This statement obviously carries with it the unquestionable assurance that the Soviet union is solid and lasting: that all effective counter-revolution is over: that Russia's only problem is an internal economic one.

Granted all this—what can she do with this magnificent economic equipment once she has it built? If she can run it as efficiently as American managers and American workmen and American genius can, then within 15 or 20 years Soviet Russia will be a real competitor of America. Her second motto: "Catch up with and pass America"—will be close at hand.

But Russians are a non-mechanical people. Eighty-five percent of them, up to a few years ago, could not read or write. They had never seen a more complicated machine than an eight-inch steel plow. They had no 150 years of mechanical tradition behind them.

Says Something Will Break

And now in a brief half decade they are to be motorized and industrialized in terms of America. They are to start off in high gears.

I contend it is a magnificent and audacious dream—but that something is bound to break. Until they can get the hang of this new machine of civilization, they will rip out gear after gear.

They are thrilled beyond belief by anything and everything mechanical. Driving through a little village in the North Caucasus, and stopping for a moment to ask directions, we had an old peasant beg us to wait until he could run and tell his wife so she could see our motor car. He couldn't handle a monkey-wrench, but he had caught the religious fervor of the new god machinery.

Everywhere in Russialand this is true. The machine—the factory—the motor car—the tractor—these are the symbols of new Russia. They have captured the minds of 152,000,000 people. But this 152,000,000 must teach old fashioned hands how to do modern things.

Sees Slow Operation

Today they will not be able to operate their great new plants and factories at more than 25 percent of American efficiency. This means that it will take four times the labor—in terms of men and machines—to turn out a given unit of product. They cannot overnight be shifted from a backward, agricultural people to a highly modernized, highly-efficient mechanized people.

They can construct factories—import machinery and American technical aid, but the building of tractors, motors machinery are fundamentally questions of assembly. The machine is no stronger than its weakest part. They have neither engineers, trained managers nor efficient workers, nor do they understand the tremendous difficulties of exact materials. It will be impossible to turn out first rate machines except after years of experimentation and elimination. Two things are indispensable: first, good workmanship, and second, good materials. Both are woefully lacking in Russia at present.

Propaganda's Benefits

I stopped a school boy in the city of Rostov in South Russia. He was a bright-eyed, eager lad of 11—communist pioneer, a Russian boy scout.

"What are you learning in school?" I asked him.

"I learn that we must have machines and factories and tractors like America," he answered quickly and proudly. "Someday we will catch up and pass America. Then other countries will have to have revolutions so they can be like we are."

"Do you like America?" I asked.

"Yes, they have motor cars and machines. America is our goal." And then came the inevitable question—the result of these years of propaganda education: "When will America have her revolution?"

I laughed. But he was serious.

"Well," I finally answered, "I suppose we'll have our revolution when they take the motor cars away from our workmen."

For minutes he argued with me. He had been taught the stock phrases and ideals. He was a "pioneer"—a Red boy scout. In five years more he would be a communist youth: and then at 25 a full fledged communist. He was the voice of future Russia speaking.

Under Communism's Spell

His older brothers—now between 20 and 30—have had the same narrow, pointed class education. In another 10 years they will be the rulers of Russia. All their thinking lives have been spent under the spell of communism. They have been taught in communist schools; they have been preached and harangued and inspired with the "religion" of communism. They are hard and Red and uncompromising. They are the real revolutionists—real internationalists. They are interested in the masses of the world. They have abiding faith in their doctrines—and unshakable belief in their crusading destiny to change the whole social face of the world.

I shall never forget a group of these young men in a hotel dining room in Harkov. Ninety per cent of them wore their caps as they wolfed their food. They were proudly without manners, without culture, without gentleness, they were hard, determined, unsympathetic, burning up with the fire of their doctrines—with a self confidence beyond belief. They were the "physical" communists.

They are the new men of new Russia. They are the fruits of 12 years of Soviet teaching and propaganda. And these new men are not from the old rough soil, but the new rough soul of Russia. They have been mechanized, industrialized. They dream of the coming of the machine age. They have given up all individualism. They are the bolts and wheels of the great Russian machine of the future.

Machine Their God

To these eager young millions who know nothing but Soviet philosophy—who have never felt the cool, free winds of the wide world blow through their minds—the machine is the new god.

They no longer believe that Russian bayonets can capture the "capitalistic world," but they are sure that once Russia can build a better civilization than any other country, they will win the world by the very force and power of their ideas.

To build this new Russia they turn to the country they hate most—to America, the perfect example of "capitalistic" efficiency. They will buy our brains and our machines. They will pay for them with gold and platinum and metals—with oil and timber—with caviar and eggs—with furs and coal and butter.

Then, with Russia industrialized—with the song of her city factories in tune with the hum of her million tractors and her new agriculture—she will contest for the world. And her rival will be America.

Editor's Note: In tomorrow's article Mr. Hunt tells us "Russia still is cruel and intolerant. Never has there been such a spy system, nor such an actuality of terror. Never has there been so little genuine personal freedom. Never has there been a government so centralized and autocratic. Never has life been harder and crueler. Religion is crushed and the home is in a transitory stage."

DOCTORS SHOW QUICK WAY TO END COLDS

Many Here Helped by Pleasant Hospital Methods Doctors Advise For Home Use

More and more Marion people, like Edward B. Russell, are finding how quickly colds may now be ended by a pleasant hospital method which doctors advise for home use.

The sudden change in weather recently caused Mr. Russell to catch a severe cold. He neglected to do anything about it until congestion started spreading so fast that he became alarmed.

Acting on the advice of his doctor, Mr. Russell then started taking double doses of Ayer's Pectoral—a hospital certified compound of wild cherry, terpin hydrate, etc., which physicians have named as the best of different, widely known methods tested for head colds, coughs and chest colds.

Relief began quickly, the doctor reports. Within a few hours after the first dose of Ayer's Pectoral, congestion had cleared up rapidly. That night he slept comfortably and in just a day or so examination showed that all trace of the cold was gone.

Note: See other cases reported daily in this paper—all certified by the attending physician.

Ayer's Pectoral was hospital certified as the best of different widely used methods tested for head colds, coughs and chest colds because it gave the quickest, surest relief—with absolute safety. It is now featured by all leading druggists.

Adults, too, prefer "NO DOSING" for COLDS

Ever since Vicks VapoRub originated the better method of treating colds "without dosing," it has been used largely by mothers of young children, because there's nothing to swallow, and, of course, nothing to upset the little ones' delicate stomachs.

Each year more and more adults, too, have found Vicks equally good for their own colds. Just rubbed on, it acts through the skin like a plaster, and at the same time, releases medicated vapors, which are breathed in direct to the inflamed air-passages.

Ever-increasing demand for this better method of treating colds is shown in the figures of the famous Vick slogan. First announced when Vicks reached "17 Million Jars Used Yearly"—later raised to "21 Million"—there are now "Over 26 Million Jars Used Yearly."

Members of Trinity Lutheran Ladies' Aid and Missionary society, of south of the city, were entertained at a program and social meeting Thursday at the home of Mrs. Roy Jennings, Cummins av. Devotionals were in charge of Mrs. Chris Laucher and the lesson topic, "Elizabeth, the Great Mother of a Great Son," was discussed by the pastor, Rev. F. M. Koepplin.

A reading, "The Bible Is More Popular than the Best Seller," was given by Mrs. C. E. Basler, following a vocal duet by Mrs. H. W. Nigles and Mrs. H. F. Lust. Mrs. A. H. Seiter contributed a reading, "Prayer," and Mrs. Gilbert Bensler's reading was "Foreign Missions." A hymn, "The King's Highway," by the members was followed by a sketch, "Aunt Kate Wright's Cottage," presented by Mrs. Grover Lichtenberger, Mrs. Eva Schwaderer and Mrs. Chris Laucher. Guests included Mrs. Bell, Mrs. J. H. Seiter and [illegible] bel and Miss Hazel Lichtenberger. The next meeting will be the second Thursday in February with Mrs. Grover Lichtenberger, south of the city.

Starting on a vacation, you think that you'll never come back. "Never" is three weeks.

WILL COST MORE

$1 Additional to Dog Tax Price Effective After Jan. 20

All dog owners who wait until next Tuesday to buy 1930 tags for their dogs will pay $1 more than the regular price, according to County Auditor Earl D. Thomas. The $1 penalty will be attached to the price of all tags purchased after Jan. 20, the auditor stated today.

Slightly more than half the approximately 4,000 dogs in the county are wearing 1930 tags.

Eternally "there is something radically wrong."

THE SPIRIT OF YOUTH

carry on—Avoid that future shadow

AVOID THAT FUTURE SHADOW*

By refraining from over-indulgence, if you would maintain the modern figure of fashion

Avoid the snags along the common-sense path to fitness and fashion. Don't let over-indulgence deprive you of the tantalizing contour of the modern figure. Be moderate—be moderate in all things, even in smoking. Eat healthfully but not immoderately—when your eyes are bigger than your stomach, reach for a Lucky instead. Coming events cast their shadows before. Avoid that future shadow by avoiding over-indulgence, if you would maintain the graceful, modern figure with its captivating curves.

Lucky Strike, the finest Cigarette you ever smoked, made of the finest tobacco—The Cream of the Crop—"IT'S TOASTED." Everyone knows that heat purifies and so "TOASTING" not only removes impurities but adds to the flavor and improves the taste.

"Coming events cast their shadows before"

"It's toasted"

*Be Moderate! . . . Don't jeopardize the modern form by drastic diets, harmful reducing girdles, fake reducing tablets or other quack "anti-fat" remedies condemned by the Medical profession! Millions of dollars each year are wasted on these ridiculous and dangerous nostrums. Be Sensible! Be Moderate! We do not represent that smoking Lucky Strike Cigarettes will bring modern figures or cause the reduction of flesh. We do declare that when tempted to do yourself too well, if you will "Reach for a Lucky" instead, you will thus avoid over-indulgence in things that cause excess weight and, by avoiding over-indulgence, maintain a modern, graceful form.

On the Streets of Marion

WITH STAR STAFF

Long Winded

PERSONS who own radios know that when their set takes a "streak" of whistling that there is but one remedy and that is to shut it off.

However, when a set is doing its best, it is seldom that the listener becomes disgusted and shuts off a perfectly good cornet player, rendering a difficult solo.

Yet that is what nearly happened in a local restaurant this week. A cornet soloist was yodeling his cornet over some trills that would delight the heart of an Alpine climber. He was also demonstrating that he had good lungs, for he held a particularly high note for no less than a minute and a half.

Naturally the rest of the orchestra ceased its labors while this little feat was being done. Not paying particular attention to the [illegible], the manager of the restaurant did not realize what was happening and instead [illegible] the prolonged high note for an [illegible] [illegible] and ordered the set shut off.

Luckily, a waitress had been listening and intervened with the result that the [illegible] [illegible] his long note with everyone holding his or her [illegible] breath in sympathy.

When the long note had been ended, the announcer [illegible] remarked that the cornetist could not give a fair exhibition of his ability, as their allotted time on the program was only half an hour.

Progressive Step

COMBINATION of efforts of the three music groups in the city—the Lecture-Recital club, the Canto club and the Marion Civic orchestra—for a joint spring concert is seen on the streets of Marion as one of the most progressive moves these organizations have made.

The three organizations have their places in the city's artistic life. Two of them, the women's organization and the men's chorus, have a number of years behind them. The civic orchestra is going through its most difficult period and its greatest need is a place in which to rehearse often and opportunities to appear in public.

When the three groups bring their respective talent together then Marion should most assuredly hear something worth while.

Such joint efforts of the city's artistic talent are just what Marion needs to keep up its inspirational tone. If these organizations could appear several times each season in joint concerts they would be doing something well worth their time and something highly beneficial to the city.

Modern Harness

A DOZEN or 15 years ago the city youth knew his cows and his horses and his pigs—knew them perhaps not as well as the boy in the country, but he knew them fairly well.

Which reminds one of a story told on a Marion boy.

He went out into the country the other day to visit a boy friend. The boy friend had a pony which didn't take long to catch the eye of the visitor from the city.

Talk went on and on and finally the city boy could hold himself no longer.

"Say, Bert, I tell you what let's do," he said.

"You get the steer and the [illegible] and we'll take a ride on this pony."

Radio de Luxe

AND, then there's the story about a certain man about town—a business man—who had a happy hunch on his radio.

He has one of those speakers that one may carry hither and thither about the house.

"Why not take it upstairs?" thought he, further giving consideration to the idea that it would be nice to lie abed reading and at the same time hear the divine music that comes forth from the speaker.

But, how to turn it off without going downstairs.

Then, an idea! Why not fasten a piece of string from the switch control on the radio and carry it upstairs?

Excellent idea! Tried out and worked. Fine—as far as it goes.

BUT——

And this part of the story that the aforesaid man about town has been denying.

One night he tired of the music and his paper or book and reaching out gave the cord a yank. The music ceased and he eased himself into slumber.

Out of the darkness suddenly there came a sharp sound, penetrating his brain and jumping him out of bed. The telephone! And, then it happened. Into the string he plunged and the more he [illegible] [illegible] the more he became tangled—until it is said—and here he denies it with more vim and vigor than before—that he yanked the [illegible] [illegible] and had to call out the [illegible] [illegible] the next day to put it in order.

Moral—[illegible]

Beating the Taxi

ACCIDENTS in changing money happen once in a while, but the other night a certain taxi driver in Marion was short a quarter and knew the reason why. It seems he was called to take a [illegible] home from some social event and when she reached her destination her fare was 25 cents. She refused to pay by saying that she always paid quarter fares to the drivers. The young driver was much embarrassed, not being very experienced at his trade.

Finally the [illegible] rummaged through her pocketbook and found a [illegible] and a quarter. She [illegible] the driver a quarter [illegible] of course he refused it. Figuring that she would only get 25 cents change from her bill, the woman started the argument. After some [illegible] around, she [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] finally, registering a sleepy grin he said, "Well, keep you [illegible]. I haven't a lot of change with me."

The moral of this short story might be, "Take while the taking's good."

Varicose Veins

If you or any relative or friend are worried or suffer because of varicose veins or bunches, the best advice that anyone in this world can give is to get a prescription that literally hundreds of people all over the country are using with complete satisfaction.

Simply ask your druggist for an original two ounce bottle of Emerald Oil (full strength) and apply night and morning to the swollen, enlarged veins, rubbing gently upwards and towards the heart as the blood in the veins flows that way. Soon you will notice that they are growing smaller and the treatment should be continued until the veins are of normal size. Emerald Oil is a powerful, yet harmless germicide, and results are guaranteed by its makers. You can get it at Bradley's Drug Store and all good druggists.—Adv.

MANY FACTORIES USE LOCAL PLANT OUTPUT

Malleable Co. Products Have Important Place in Industry

ture of these castings is melted in one of the two large melting furnaces at the plant and cast into molds. Castings are then picked out, allowed to cool, and packed in annealing pots. These are sealed airtight by a clay-like material, and placed in one of the 10 huge annealing ovens at the plant.

The annealing cycle is from 9 to 10 days from the time the castings are placed in the oven until they are ready to be removed. In annealing, the pots in which the castings are packed are heated to a temperature of 1,580 degrees. Between 40 and 50 hours are required for the ovens to reach this temperature. This intensive heat is maintained in the oven for 72 hours, and then the pots and castings are allowed to gradually cool.

In the anneal, the brittle castings under go a change which makes them soft and ductile. What actually happens is that the combined carbon in the castings is broke up into a temper carbon. It is not a chemical, but more of a mechanical change, according to Mr. LaMarche. The reaction involved in the annealing process takes place within the iron carbide, or cementite of the iron.

When the castings are removed from the annealing ovens, a bar half an inch thick may be bent two inches to the foot without any signs of breakage, whereas before the annealing process, the casting would have been broken instead of bent, if subjected to pressure.

Nearly the entire output of the plant finds a market in factories within a 200-mile radius of Marion, although shipments have been made to the Atlantic and Pacific coasts. The demand for these castings fluctuates with manufacturing in general.

90,000 Feet of Floor Space

The plant in which the factory is located consists of several adjoining buildings which give a total floor space of 90,000 square feet. The plant is located on a four and a half acre tract of land.

The capacity of the local plant is approximately 5,000 tons a year, according to officials of the plant.

Virtually a plant within a plant is the Arro Expansion Bolt Co., headed by George Flora, president and general manager. All the work of this plant is done within the American Malleable Castings Co. In its first year of existence, which recently ended, the Arro Expansion Bolt Co. manufactured 150,000 bolts. Other officials are C. F. LaMarche, treasurer, and J. C. Ackerman, secretary.

The American Malleable Castings Co. is one of the oldest industries in the city, having been known as the Marion Malleable Iron Co. until 1905, when it was reorganized by Charles LaMarche, its present president, who has not been active in the management of the company for the last eight years.

C. F. LaMarche is vice president and treasurer of the company and D. L. LaMarche is secretary. J. C. Ackerman is auditor and assistant treasurer.

The local company is a member of the Malleable Iron Research Institute, and sends test bars to the consulting engineer at Albany, N. Y., and is visited monthly by the institute's inspector.

A new electrical process of annealing has been recently discovered, whereby the annealing cycle is cut from 9 or 10 days to between 27 and 33 hours. This process is known as the short cycle anneal, but has not yet been entirely perfected. It is very probable that the short cycle anneal will be installed in the local factory when the process is perfected and can be done economically.

Reporting to congress through the president, Mr. Wickersham and his board of inquiry asks few jury trials, "tighter padlocking," to aid the dry law, and the transfer of prohibition enforcement from the secretary of the treasury to the attorney general.

The commission expresses no definite opinion as to the wisdom of prohibition, taking that, apparently, for granted, and confining itself to methods of enforcing the law.

FLOOD-WATER CREEPS TO PROSPECT HOMES

Families in North of Village Leave Dwellings as Scioto Continues Rise

flooded many of the highways in the vicinity of Upper Sandusky. Monday night the waters in the Sandusky river had risen to the fourteen and one-half foot mark. Traffic on the Marion road south of town had to be suspended as the water was high over the road. If the water continues to rise it will be over the Lincoln highway east of Upper Sandusky. Since Saturday night over an inch of rain has fallen. It was reported Monday that Tymochtee Creek, west of Upper Sandusky, was higher this time than it was last week.

Power and telephone lines disrupted and destroyed by the sleet storm last week are gradually being restored in Hardin county. Practically all communities without light and power for three days and more are now receiving service and rural phone lines out for four days have been reestablished.

Small streams and creeks in sections of Hardin county are overflowing their banks inundating many acres of farm land. The Scioto river in Kenton and west of there has reached its highest stage since dredging operation 10 years ago. However, there is no danger of floods, P. C. Robinson, member of the Hardin County Conservancy Board said.

The Scioto east of Kenton in the Hepburn neighborhood has left its banks but the flood situation is not dangerous.

Floods are also seriously threatening northeastern and eastern Ohio, reports from those sections indicate.

One death was attributed to heavy rains yesterday when Clarence Wistman, 48, of Steubenville was killed when his automobile crashed into a landslide which blocked a road.

School buses had stopped in the vicinity of Akron today as the Tuscarawas and Cuyahoga rivers continued to rise. Rivers in southern Ohio were still rising but there was no immediate danger of an overflow.

The Olentangy river is pouring over the lowlands of Delaware county after a four-foot rise in 10 hours. Residents of one lowland district near Massillon were forced to leave their homes yesterday in boats.

The flood is seriously affecting industrial plants in the Mahoning river valley. Warren, Alliance, Niles, and Youngstown are among the cities affected. It was thought this morning that the Mahoning river would cover state road No. 18 at Alliance, between Salem and Canton, before night.

Cellars of Main st. stores in Fremont were reported flooded today.

Many lakes in Central Ohio were near flood stage today. The Scioto river was reported to be more than three feet above flood stage at Circleville and Chillicothe today. The Muskingum river measured five feet above flood stage at Coshocton.

Motorists Accused of Traffic Violations

Two motorists were arrested by police last night for allegedly "crashing" red traffic lights in the city.

W. H. Freese, 26, of 142 Court st., was arrested after he allegedly failed to obey a traffic light signal at Leader and Center sts., at 10:20 o'clock last night. He was driving a Chevrolet coach.

Herman Schmidt, 24, Prospect, was arrested for failing to stop at a red traffic signal on Prospect st., at 5:45 o'clock yesterday afternoon. He was driving a Ford coupe.

Both men were released on bond to appear in municipal court to answer traffic violation charges.

CAR DYNAMITED BY BANDITS; 3 KILLED

Others Expected To Die as Result of Bombing of Payroll Car

sending the current coursing through to the dynamite.

A terrific explosion resulted, rocking the countryside. The splintered paycar, with its human load, was hurled into the air and was thrown on its side. All of the men killed were mutilated. Their limbs were torn from their bodies, their heads and chests were crushed and the currency itself was strewn in wild confusion about the wreckage.

Stewart Hettig, Lehigh Valley railroad section foreman who was walking his own tracks near the miner tracks, was the only man to witness the explosion. Hettig told police that shortly before the blast let go he had seen two men, strangers, lurking about the scene of the subsequent dynamiting.

Scott, a unarmed guard, said that while he was lying dazed in the wreckage he saw a man run up to the iron money chest attached to the trailer car from which the lid had been ripped by the force of the blast, stuff his pockets with currency and flee down the tracks.

Police are convinced that the dynamiting had been carefully planned and skillfully executed, the almost mathematical precisions of the bomb's effect pointing to a more than casual knowledge of dynamite-battery blasting. The explosion had been planned in an isolated spot along the mountainside near the mine, where the concussion was most likely to be muffled.

Italy again demands parity with France in naval armaments. The delegates to the five-power naval conference will probably realize by the time the conference concludes its labors that they haven't been on a mere junketing trip.

New York City last year collected $628,790,000 and paid out $814,938,000. A private enterprise conducted like that would soon find itself in the hands of a receiver, which, by the way, is just where the great majority of the cities of the land should be.

City 6,000 Years Old.

The archaeologists of the joint expedition of the University of Pennsylvania and the British museum announce that they have discovered in Mesopotamia on the site of Ur of the Chaldees the ruins of a city which dates back at least 4,000 years before the Christian era and found therein urns and vases of clay which are unlike any heretofor found.

The ruins, upon which the traces of four other cities rested, one above the other, show buildings constructed of small mud brick, set herringbone fashion and drained by clay tile somewhat similar to the ordinary tile used here in America for surface drainage purposes. All these discoveries were made quite a distance below the tombs discovered outside the walls of the city last year and uncovered. The stoppers of some of the urns found at the time these tombs were discovered are stamped with the seals of Nesanna-Padda, first king of the first dynasty, and Nin-tur-Nin, his wife, which shows that the strata over them must have been formed about 3,000 years B. C., as they ruled 5,000 years ago. The strata in which the newly-discovered ruins are located is at least fifteen feet below the strata in which those stoppers were found.

The scientists of the expedition look upon their discoveries of the past year as of the highest importance, feeling that they presage the getting down to the city of Ur which existed before the flood.

The average person is disposed to accept life as it comes, caring little how it came, but not so the scientists. They want to know life as far back as it is possible for them to trace it. They want to know, by way of illustration, what life and living were like back to and preceding the great inundation for which we have Biblical authority and each year they are getting closer to that goal. And having reached that goal, possibly they will discover conditions and facts which will lead them on to still further explorations seeking buried cities antedating the pre-flood cities. That's the way of the archaeologists. Seemingly they are never satisfied, never content to rest on their laurels, but keep digging on and on.

The Commission Reports.

Submitting to congress, Monday, the preliminary report on the subject of prohibition made by the law enforcement commission named by him, President Hoover urged action on the part of the legislative branch of the government in line with the recommendations of the commission and a number of recommendations of his own, with all of which readers had opportunity to become acquainted through yesterday's press dispatches from Washington.

With prohibition enforcement turned over to the department of justice, the various agencies for apprehending and prosecuting violations consolidated, the Jones law rewritten to classify offenses, court procedure in minor cases simplified, the courts and prosecuting officials augmented and the prohibition laws codified, there is every reason to believe that prohibition enforcement would be materially strengthened, without considering the added benefit which might accrue from the meeting of the other recommendations. But action along the line of recommendations will necessarily take time, and thus, if the general public is as impatient as a considerable element in congress and some of the ultra dry and ultra wet leaders outside of congress have proved to be, there is bound to be something in the way of a feeling of disappointment over this preliminary report, to the making of which the commission was unduly hastened, especially on the part of that element of the public which imagined that the commission would produce some magic formula which would prove a cure for the disease.

The probable truth is that prohibition enforcement will never be what it should be so long as the federal enforcement agents and agencies are anything like so limited as they are at present and there is a lack of cooperation on the part of the authorities of the various states. Congress does not appear disposed to legislate the necessary funds materially to augment the pitifully small forces at present engaged in the work, and some of the states are not only lukewarm, but have shown by the rescinding of laws which could be invoked to aid in enforcement that they are unfriendly to prohibition. The fact that such states hold out that prohibition enforcement is the duty of the federal government and not that of the several states of the union can hardly be taken as other than mere camouflage. Under the law, some classifications of crime must be taken into federal courts for prosecution, but under the law a law enforcement officer is expected to apprehend any criminal caught by him in the commission of a crime or bring about the apprehension of any person he knows to be guilty of a crime, and no officer is justified in making fish of one kind of a criminal and fowl of another.

It must have been a terrible shock to some of those aboard the George Washington, which carried our delegation to the naval conference, to discover, when outside the twelve-mile limit, that the brewery aboard had been closed down for the eastward trip because of the presence of the delegation.

The anti-Christian movement in Tricenfu, China, has resulted in the closing of the Shantung Christian university and hospital. To a lot of people it has long seemed that the money Christian nations expend in China might much better be used at home. Conditions in no Christian land are such that they could not be improved.

The late John M. Hansen, of Pittsburgh, former president of the Standard Steel Car company, willed his entire $5,000,000 estate to his wife in a one-line sentence. That kind of a will, experience has demonstrated, is about the only kind the lawyers have been unable to break.

A Chicago man, found guilty of picking the pocket of a citizen up there and getting $18, secured a new trial because the state was content to prove that he stole $18 and neglected to prove that it was "legal tender of the United States." It's that kind of stuff in our laws and legal procedures which saddles on to the country a lot of its crime.

An Iowan predicts that the farmers of the future will live in big apartment-houses, which will tower at cross-roads and house whole communities. In other words, American farm life will adopt a modification of the plan which has prevailed in France and some other European lands for centuries.

The plane fare from New York City to the Pacific coast has been cut $107.51 and is now $159.92, but notwithstanding the fact that air transportation is thus made lower than the extra-fare-and-Pullman rate, a lot of hard-working spreaders of joy and sunshine in paragraphs will probably take their two weeks off on pay in the same old way.

One of two thugs, who told a Chicago citizen that they would pass him up if he would give them five dollars, but would beat him up and take all he had if he didn't, managed to escape, but the police found the citizen on top of the other and beating him up. The poor thugs had no way of knowing that the citizen was of Scotch ancestry and would no more consider giving up five dollars than he would giving up one of his legs.

Mayor Thompson and his crowd suffered defeat at the hands of the anti-administration members of the Chicago council, which voted, despite "Big Bill's" efforts, to reconsider the entire city budget for 1930. The Hon. William hasn't had a bit of luck, apparently, since he staged his costly war against the myrmidons of King George.

Thirty-two deaths and great property damage resulted from a 120-mile gale, which hit England Sunday. The scientist who has been contending that there is a close relation between sunspots and terrestrial disturbances should be satisfied with the manner in which Mother Nature has demonstrated the worth of his theory. Happily, for us earth-dwellers, the sun will soon be out of its maximum period.

Walking Aids in Halting Disease.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

If you suspect that you may have high blood pressure, or some one tells you that you have it, do not be too disturbed, for many a person has lived far past eighty in spite of it.

With the rapid pace of life in these days, it is no wonder that people have high blood pressure. As doctors have increased knowledge of the variations that occur from normal to abnormal blood pressure, they realize that "normal" blood pressure is rare.

Certain diseases have high blood pressure as a symptom. Bright's disease, that familiar disease of the kidneys, is usually accompanied by high blood pressure. But the possession of high blood pressure does not prove that you have Bright's disease. As a matter of fact, many other conditions are accompanied by it.

High blood pressure may be brought on by extreme nervousness, worry or some other disturbance of the nervous system. One of the outstanding causes is auto-intoxication, or intestinal poisoning.

There is a vicious circle set up in the system by overindulgence in rich foods, alcoholic or other overstimulation, lack of proper rest, and any kind of excess which upsets the nervous system. There is bound to be intestinal poisoning, blood pressure and general ill-health where these excesses exist.

Every one should have a physical examination by a competent doctor once a year. After a person is fifty, it is well to have an examination twice a year. "Prevention" is the watchword today. Be on the safe side and guard your health.

Of course we should begin early in life to keep fit. To keep in good condition by a proper diet and everyday physical exercise means long life.

Those who must live a sedentary life should be extremely careful to get enough exercise to counteract the inactivity of hours in the day's work. Your muscles, arteries and veins must be plastic and in good working order to do the work of the body. Vigorous exercise of some sort is the only thing that will accomplish this.

Golf, walking, swimming and all sensible exercises help to get rid of disease, as well as to prevent it. One doctor of my acquaintance once said that he had "kept ten patients with a blood pressure of 200 in good condition for ten years through exercise on the golf course." He also said: "People should not be concerned with the arithmetic of high blood pressure, but with providing wholesome conditions of living which will eliminate the causes of high pressure." — Copyright, 1930, Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Dr. Copeland will answer for readers of this paper, questions on medicinal, hygienic and sanitation subjects that are of general interest. Where the subject of a letter is such that it can not be published in this column, Dr. Copeland will, when the question is a proper one, write you personally if a self-addressed, stamped envelope is enclosed. Address all inquiries to Dr. Royal S. Copeland, in care of this paper.

With the Scientists.

Bombs that explode and emit smoke and flame long distances have been invented by Swedish engineers to enable crews of submarines that are disabled under water to signal their location.

A Los Angeles inventor's device to obtain power from sea waves is featured by a point that cuts each wave that strikes it in two, each portion revolving turbines connected to electric generators.

Mechanism invented by a Frenchman to be mounted back of a rifle target automatically raises figures to show the scores made by bullets and disks to indicate the directon of hits from the center.

The Sea of Galilee will be utilized as the chief reservoir for the production of hydro-electric power from the River Jordan, which has a descent of more than 3,000 feet from its source to the Dead Sea.

Changes in temperature as light as six degrees cause alcohol in a cylinder to expand or contract and operate a piston that keeps an Ohio inventor's clock wound.

A German chemist claims to have developed a method for extracting the poisonous elements from several widely used drugs without impairing their medicinal value.

An Alaska engineer claims to control an airplane almost automatically by mounting the pilot's seat on a pivot and connecting it by wires to the elevators and rudder.

Two of the South Sea islands, Nauru and Ocean island, yield an average of 500,000 tons of phosphate rock each year and their supply is believed to be inexhaustible.

A southern inventor's unsinkable motor boat consists chiefly of two metal cylinders that roll over water and are propelled by an outboard motor suspended between them.

Editorial Opinion.

IS ALDA RIGHT?

Madame Frances Alda, retiring from the Metropolitan Opera company, for which she has sung for over twenty-one years, gives the usual swan song interview.

In it she deplores what these changing times have seen in the operatic world. There are no longer the voices which thrilled the world, she says. Young singers will not work and fight and sacrifice and struggle for that elusive thing, art, as did the Carusos of old.

Nowadays it is the easy ascendancy up the ladder. Fame becomes a lurid combination of cheap luck and raucous publicity, rather than fame built on the granite of intrinsic talent, experience, genius.

Madame Alda merely says what every veteran of any role generally says when reviewing the past. And one wonders a little whether they are really right, or whether it is the old story of the rose spectacles which we all wear when we look into the past.

The past has become softly blurred by time.

Time has the little way of throwing her softening mantle over grotesquely vivid outlines and leaving only vague pleasing lines.

The old and familiar way "clicks" with the one who trod his or her day when things were done so and so. The new world is strangely unfamiliar. No understanding, no being a part of that new world, we contrast in favor of the one we know.

Perhaps, though, she is right. Perhaps we are living in a speedy, complicated world which does not give the palm to real values, but to the one who has the best ballyhoo man.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

THE YEARS AND MR. TAFT.

Many Ohio people remember William Howard Taft as he was in the days before President Harrison called him to Washington for national service in 1890. Then he had not reached middle age, was healthy, a towering figure, portly, with beaming good nature showing in his smile. Such memories are jarred rudely by the news from Washington that infirmities incident to old age have come to stay with him.

The years go by with little attention when friends are separated, each remembers the other as he was before parting. Four decades have passed since Taft became solicitor general of the United States. He was back in Ohio a few years after completing his term, but was on the bench of the appellate court and not before the public many times. Then off to Washington again and since then he has remained out of his native state. The years have gone by so swiftly. Mr. Taft now is seventy-three years of age.

There was a time when Mr. Taft had opposition in this state, but later years brought revision of judgment, and he has been restored to the good graces of Ohio people. We can look at the calendar and study it, admit four decades have passed since Mr. Taft first went to Washington, but to think of "Big Smiling Bill" Taft as an old man, bent with the weight of the years, is difficult for those who remember him as he was in former times.—Ohio State Journal.

SAVING LEE'S BIRTHPLACE.

The project to purchase Stratford, birthplace of Robert E. Lee, should have the hearty support of the North, as well as of Virginia and the South. When the states were reunited the great Lee ceased to be only a knight of the confederacy. The South gave him to all Americans.

The purchase price of Stratford, which was Lee's birthplace and that of his immediate ancestors, is $240,000. Of this amount $50,000 already has been paid. Virginians are raising $100,000 and other southern states are contributing to the total. A substantial payment—the whole amount, it is hoped—will be made on January 19, Lee's birthday.

It would be a splendid gesture of friendship and of regard for the South's beloved man and warrior, if many Cincinnatians, many people of Ohio, should contribute modestly toward making Lee's birthplace a national shrine.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Another Form of Cowardice.

A co-ed declares the modern girl is afraid of nothing. Unless it be that she is afraid to be afraid of something.—Columbus Citizen.

Twenty Years Ago.

It was Friday, January 14.

The oldest inhabitants reported that they had never seen so much slush and ice on the streets of the city as they had waded through the day before, a light rain having followed the heavy snows.

S. L. Wiser was installed as court deputy of the local lodge of Foresters.

The members of the local degree of Pocahontas held a big mask social.

The Marion basketball team defeated Ashland, fifty-nine to eighteen.

Marriage licenses were issued to Mary Amanda James and William Curtis and to Mrs. Sarah Furnes and William J. Tavener.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. James Schindler, of Irey avenue.

The City of Vienna.

BY TEMPLE MANNING.

Perhaps the most outstanding characteristic of the city of Vienna is its streets and boulevards. They are marvelous—broad, well-gardened and lined with attractive shops. They are streets built for the promenade. One instinctively turns toward them, wanders along watching the parade of gay Viennese and the procession of automobiles, or window shops!

The most prominent street is the Ring Strasse, which completely encircles the so-called inner city where are located the vast majority of the government buildings and those buildings which, in the days of the Hapsburg regime, were the homes of the royal family.

Facing on this famous "Ring" are some of the most imposing buildings in the city. The house of parliament, formerly the home of the imperial diet, is one of them. It is done in classic simplicity with the entire front facade a row of columns. The building is set back from the street somewhat, and a winding ramp leads up to the central entrance, giving the building an added dignity and air of importance. A little further along and on the opposite side of the Ring Strasse, is the Burg theater, one of the best-known theaters in Europe—if not the world. It is another architectural masterpiece.

Monuments and gardens galore dot the Ring which has justifiably become on of the beloved spots of Vienna.

A branch of the Danube river has been converted into a canal and runs through Vienna, near the edge of the "inner city." Across this there are many bridges, each carrying ornate statues which, throughout the years, have been dear to those emotional, sentimental people. These bridges are usually lined with the booths of fruit and flower vendors—women in bright costumes, their heads wrapped in handkerchiefs, gypsy fashion.

The city fathers of Vienna have taken full advantage of the Danube "canal." Along its edge run broad streets and promenades, little gardens and rows of shade trees.

But there are other streets—the streets of the old section of the city. They are cobbled, and on them face the low houses of the true Viennese. Here also will be found many of the beer gardens and the wine shops where in the springtime the people gather to drink "heurigen," the native wine. Each year when the new beverage is ready, the wine shop keepers hang over their doors branches of evergreen and the "heurigen" parties with their simple good cheer begin.

New York, Jan. 14 — Custom spies h garnered a rich harvest this season. S snoopers are found where you least ex them—the casual passenger, deck ch neighbor on shipboard, the humble ch abroad, hotel porter, femme de chambre, men and others working where people gat

In a way, the government is forced to unworthy espionage for it is the only way cope with smuggling. The informer is twenty-five per cent. of the fine imposed information and in no instance is his iden revealed to those whom he betrays.

Thus the valet or nurse in a wealthy fa ily may keep tab on purchases abroad, file list with officials and receive a handso reward without even losing his job. Clerks European jewelry houses are the bigg profiteers in getting their divvy of smuggli lines.

Even in reputable establishments cler have been known to jockey customers into trap. They whisper ways and means evading duties and immediately dispatch formation to proper authorities and later ceive the rewards of their treachery.

The biggest smuggling malefactors—o side of the professionals—are the extrem rich. They are forever taking chances a forever being caught. At times they are p mitted to get away with loot for several v ages and then one day their baggage is seal and carted off to warehouses.

Custom inspectors and appraisers usually tolerant with petty infractions. Ea passenger is permitted to bring in dutia goods to the amount of $100. But whe frugal passengers have saved for years the "Big Splurge" and bring in a trifle abo that amount the official eye is winked.

Human equation governs custom inspe tion. The professional is shown no mer If he has offended before, he is taken to the inspection quarters, stripped, and oft detained twenty-four hours incommunica His luggage goes under a microscopic exa ination.

I like to reminisce about the Knickerbock The place is haloed with first thrilling me ories of New York. In its lobby I saw Caru swing out the revolving door, a feather in h green Homberg hat and his cane held in t military fashion he affected, for his afterno stroll on the avenue. I lunched there on with Weber and Fields and it was at t Knickerbocker I learned to call a napkin "serviette"—that is in those moments wh I am putting on the lug. Its dining-roo taught me the charming mysteries of enc serole dishes and also the menu name chicken under glass. And the Knickerbock had the grandest gold embossed stationery all the hotel writing rooms into which dropped to write to brag to the folks how was getting on.

The petition and three remonstrances were turned over to the finance committee with the understanding that probably supplemental petitions, bearing names of additional property owners in favor of the proposed widening, will be filed. The first petition to widen the street was filed at the last regular meeting of the 1929 council.

Suggestion that council soon decide what is to be done with Main st., especially in the uptown district between George st. and Columbia st., was made by Charles E. Merkel, president of council.

ASK THAT SILVER ST BE RESURFACED

Petition that Silver st. be resurfaced with a substantial paving material from Hocking Valley railroad tracks to the west corporation line of the city was referred to the street and alley committee. Argument that unless the street was soon repaired it would be necessary to rebuild the entire streetbed was given by T. J. Mead, councilman. The petition bore the names of 19 owners of property along the line of the proposed improvement.

REPORTS ORDERED FROM DEPARTMENTS

Preparation of annual reports from all department heads was requested for the next meeting of council by Charles E. Merkel, president of council, who said these reports will be necessary to ascertain the exact financial status of the city.

No such reports were on hand last night when called for, except a report of 1929 activities of the municipal court, showing monies received and expended during the year.

TRUSTEES NAMED FOR PENSION FUNDS

W. G. Slack and R. G. Smallwood were named members of the board of trustees for the fireman's pension fund. The city fire department will name two members, and the four will name two additional members to complete the board. It will have charge of all fireman's pensions.

M. W. Kline was named member of the policeman's pension fund to succeed A. H. Williams, whose position on the board became vacant at the last election when a new member of city council was elected to succeed him. John Schneider is the councilman who is a member of the board. This board has already been completed, and is functioning. Its duties are similar to those of the fireman's pension fund, applicable to retired and pensioned members of the police force.

LEASE OF NURSES' HOME AUTHORIZED

Lease of suitable quarters for the nurses at City hospital was authorized by city council. This was ordered done by T. E. Sonnanstine, director of public safety, as an emergency measure. It is understood that the same quarters now being occupied by the nurses will be released at the same figure it has been leased for previously.

SALARIES OF TWO EMPLOYES INCREASED

Salaries of two employes of the city were increased. The salary of R. E. Burnett, assistant to F. G. Browne, superintendent of the sewage disposal plant, was increased $300 a year, fixing his salary at $2,100 a year. The salary of the clerk of the garbage collection fund was fixed at $100 a month, payable semi-monthly. This is an increase of $10 a month for this office. Miss Rhea Cardiff now occupies that position. These increases will be effective Feb. 15.

Class Meets

The Good Cheer Sunday School class held their monthly social at the home of Mrs. O. C. Walters. A program was given by the members, and the remainder of the afternoon was spent in holding contests. Refreshments were served by the hostess, Mrs. O. C. Walters, assisted by Mrs. A. C. Brown and Mrs. Jesse Hastings. The next social will be held at the home of Mrs. George Rhoads.

Daughter of Former Marion Teacher Dies

Kathryn Virginia Johnson, 15, daughter of Mrs. Reba Anderson-Johnson, of Columbus, died Monday morning in Mt. Carmel hospital, Columbus. Anemia caused the death. She was the only child of Mr. and Mrs. Merritt Hughes Johnson. Mrs. Johnson was a former teacher in the public schools here.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the Columbus home, 197 Brehl av. Burial will be made in Union cemetery.

FAVORS CHANGE

Local City Employe Argues for New Harding Highway Route

J. W. Atkinson, employed in the Marion city engineer's office, came to the defense of the proposed change in the route of the Harding Highway which eliminates Galion, in a statement issued today.

Atkinson is a property owner along the proposed new route of the road, which leads from the intersection of the Harding Highway with state road No. 61, one mile east of Iberia, directly into Mansfield, thus eliminating Galion from the Harding Highway. A hearing on a petition filed by property owners along the proposed new route was held recently in Mt. Gilead before officials of the state highway department. As yet no action has been taken by the department.

In his statement Atkinson points out that the proposed road will relieve heavy traffic on the Harding Highway between Marion and Mansfield by opening another road between the two cities. He also points out that it will eliminate a number of railroad crossings on the present route.

NO SHEEP LOSSES

No sheep were killed or injured in the county by dogs last week, according to the report filed with the board of county commissioners by Dale Rhoads, county dog warden. The warden impounded two dogs during the week, the report shows.

A Fine Record of Fair Dealing

Adjusting losses is but one part of Stock Fire Insurance service. Naturally, in the mind of the assured, it looms large when loss occurs. At that time it is the most important process of all.

Every day the adjuster meets people who have sustained losses against which they were insured. Whether greeted cordially or gruffly, the adjuster must handle his problem with tact and fairness. The reputation of his company goes with him into every case.

A Million Fire Loss Reports

Nearly a million reports of fire loss are filed annually with the Stock Fire Insurance companies. Of the claims arising from these reports, more than 99 percent are adjusted without resort to litigation; a splendid tribute to the fairness of the contracting parties — the public and the fire insurance companies.

The value of good will in the adjusting of losses is as much appreciated by the Stock Fire Insurance companies as it is in the acquisition of business.

Public Confidence

The records afford ample evidence of the sincere purpose of adjusters to settle claims in keeping with the rights of all concerned.

To the fair dealing of its adjusters Stock Fire Insurance owes a large measure of the public confidence which it enjoys.

Welfare Secretary Tells of Work in Crawford County

BUCYRUS, Jan. 14—Fifty-one active cases were reported by Mrs. P. B. Holmes, secretary of the Central Welfare association, at the regular monthly meeting held Monday night in the public health room of the library. The secretary reported 76 calls made on the clients during the past month, 38 calls made by the clients at the office, seven new cases, one reopened case, and three closed during the month of December. In addition to the regular routine work, a discussion was held on different policies in handling cases.

SCHOOL GIRL IS ENTHUSIASTIC ABOUT KONJOLA

Lost Many Pounds In Weight—Tells Of Fine Work By New and Different Medicine

MISS VIOLA M. GRAY

"One thing is certain ... I shall always praise Konjola for what it did for me," said Miss Viola M. Gray, Jefferson, near Ashtabula, Ohio. "While attending school and working hard to make my grades, I became ill from stomach trouble. My food would not digest and I was undernourished. My weight dropped from 118 pounds to 96. I did not sleep well and became nervous and rundown and fell behind in my studies.

"I tried many treatments and tonics but none of them helped me until I began taking Konjola. I began to improve in general health from the day I took this new medicine. In two weeks my stomach was normal again and I had such an appetite that I was hungry all the time. My food digested properly and I took on weight rapidly. My friends asked me what was doing it and I was only too glad to tell them about this new medicine. I shall never be without it."

Konjola is sold in Marion at Stump & Sams Pharmacy and by all the leading druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.—Adv.

Classes for Women and Girls Started at Y. M. C. A.

ACTIVITIES for women and girls will become a part of the program of the Y. M. C. A., it was announced today after Miss Rhea King had been appointed director of physical education for women.

Classes for women will be conducted on Wednesday nights while Thursday afternoon will be devoted to girls of school age. The women's classes were started as the result of a popular demand for activities of that type, it was announced. Activities for women were abandoned two years ago, with the exception of swimming.

Two swimming classes have been organized for Wednesday night. The first, starting at 7:30 o'clock, will be in charge of Miss Mary Miles. Miss King will conduct a class at 8:30 o'clock. Gym classes for women will be held every Wednesday night at 7:30 o'clock. The length of the class periods is one hour.

Miss King will have charge of the girls' activities on Thursday afternoons. At 4 o'clock a gym class will work on the lower floor. Swimming instruction is scheduled for 5 o'clock.

Sensible Way To Lose Fat

Start taking Kruschen Salts—that's the common-sense way to reduce—but don't take them with the idea that they possess reducing qualities in themselves.

This is what they do—they clean out the impurities in your blood by keeping the bowels, kidneys and liver in splendid working shape and fill you with a vigor and tireless energy you'd most forgotten had existed.

As a result instead of planting yourself in an easy chair every free moment and letting flabby fat accumulate you feel an urge for activity that keeps you moving around doing the things you've always wanted to do and needed to do to keep you in good condition.

Then watch the pounds slide off!

Kruschen Salts are the up-to-date Fountain of Youth. Take one half teaspoonful in a glass of hot or cold water tomorrow morning and every morning—they're tasteless that way, and if they don't change your whole idea about reducing, go back and get the small price you paid for them. Get an 85 cent bottle of Kruschen Salts—lasts 4 weeks— at Bradley's Drug Store or any progressive druggist anywhere in the world.

ADVISES HEAT OF RED PEPPERS FOR RHEUMATISM

Brings Almost Instant Relief

When the intolerable pains of rheumatism or aches or neuritis or lumbago drive you nearly mad, don't forget the marvelous heat nature put into red peppers. For it is this penetrating heat that relieves all pain as it soothes and gets down under the skin, seeming to clear up inflammation instantly. It is this genuine red pepper's heat that is now contained in an ointment called Rowles Red Pepper Rub. You rub it on without fear of blistering or burning. As you rub you can feel relief come. There's nothing better for breaking up a dangerous chest cold, either. All druggists sell Rowles Red Pepper Rub in convenient jars.—Adv.

'The Secret Trail'

A Fascinating Mystery Story

SCOTLAND YARD GOES OUT AFTER ITS MAN

BY ANTHONY ARMSTRONG

THE STORY THUS FAR

Jimmie Rezaire, just out of [illegible] learns that his revengeful [illegible] Long Sam, has escaped [illegible]. He is approached by a stranger offering contact with his gang and a scheme to make big money. He is asked to phone a Mr. Jack at Park [illegible].

At luncheon with Vivienne, his sweetheart, and her pal in [illegible] Harry Hyslop, Jimmie meets a Mr. Neasden, who tells him of the gang operating in London under the direction of a leader known only as No. 1.

Meanwhile a military plane crashes, two pilots are killed, and the "Murchison Sighter," a bomb-sighting apparatus, mysteriously disappears. International spies are suspected. Later, in Jewel court, where Rezaire is to meet Neasden, two men rush into the court. One falls at his feet dead, stabbed with a knife; the other escapes. Jimmie is held for questioning.

Scotland Yard and Secret Service men quiz Rezaire concerning the murder. They get little information but at his hotel room Jimmie finds a folded bit of paper in the cuff of his trousers.

Deciphering the code on the bit of paper Jimmie calls on Captain Smith at Scotland Yard, offering his services toward capturing the spies and recovering the Murchison sighter. His offer accepted, Rezaire now belongs to the Secret Service.

NOW CONTINUE THE STORY

CHATER 6

BY 1:30 Jimmie Rezaire was at a table in the upstairs part of the Coin de Paradis. The restaurant was the oddest of its type; a heated lower room with paneled walls, crowded tables, a desk with a stout lady behind it, and an all-pervading smell of frying oil; while in the upper room reached by a short passage from the narrow staircase which thereafter continued up into the private portion of the building) the formula was repeated, without the smell or the stout lady and with fewer tables set further apart. A wonderful place that upper room for conspirators to foregather, thought Jimmie. One could talk without being overheard by neighbors, one could stay on without exciting comment, and one could come again and again without appearing in the eyes of the proprietor anything more than a customer who liked the cooking.

He had scanned the lower room for Neasden and then, in spite of evident dissuasion, had insisted on mounting to the upper. It was empty of customers, but after a moment a small and obviously Italian waiter appeared from below for his order.

"Give me the lunch," commanded Jimmie, waving away the proffered card. "And a quarter flask of Old Red Chianti," he added, remembering the suave Mr. Neasden's advice.

"Sairtainly, sair." The waiter bustled off.

For a moment Jimmie stared after him. He felt he had seen his face somewhere before. But where he could not say. Then he dismissed the matter from his mind and began to wonder whether Mr. Neasden, realizing that he must have been prevented from coming last night, would have the sense to come again. He did not like to make inquiries from the waiter or proprietor; because obviously less the restaurant people knew about doubtful customers who met there the better. He was also wondering how best to explain to Neasden that he did not wish to join him after all. For of course the high-art burglary business was now off: or at any rate till he had finished with the problem of the stolen Murchison sighter. That would occupy him fully for the next week.

Three or Four Men

He settled down to his food, but his brain was busy marshaling his information about the sighter. What had he definitely learned from the dead man's shorthand notes? A certain amount at any rate. He knew that there were three if not four men concerned. He knew that the bomb sighter was hidden somewhere in London.

He knew that because it was so complicated the secret was safe, and would remain so till it left the country for Paris, where the man Siminiski would arrive on the 19th to take it to Russia. He knew that therefore he presumably had six days—for today was the 13th—six days during which the spies apparently had to make some arrangements for ensuring a departure without a hitch by the Calais route. Of course, they might try to smuggle it out by means of a motorboat or airplane, but the boldest way was always best; a passport, a suitcase and an innocent appearance would do the trick easily.

He recalled the mysterious word "Corona" which had also been in the dead man's notes, but could make nothing of it. Some clue was contained in it, but what for the moment he did not know. At the moment it might mean anything or, perhaps, nothing.

He took a draught of wine—it certainly was good—and sat back with a furrowed brow. His deductions all seemed to him logical, and it was reasonable for him to suppose that this information which he possessed about his opponents' plans was at the moment correct. The question was, would they alter them? After consideration Jimmie decided that, unless they grew suddenly scared, they would not change—since at the moment they had every reason to suppose their secret had not leaked out. That deduction, too, seemed logical.

One other thing was certain, that the spies would be found somewhere in the Soho neighborhood, for everything pointed to the fact that the dead man had acquired his information close by. Actually, Jimmie felt fairly sure that a clue would be found in a Jewel court house, for men do not go about on rainy nights without hats unless they have just come from inside a house, and two minutes before the court had been empty. He began to formulate a plan for getting in touch with the inhabitants of No. 4 house—the ones who were "doubtful."

Mr. Neasden Again

His close-knit chain of thought was interrupted by the entrance of a man—the long expected Mr. Neasden. He came over to Jimmie's table with a smile of welcome, and his nose looked even larger in the tiny room than it had outside.

"Well?" he said and some of his suavity had gone, leaving hardness underneath. "Where were you last night?"

"Couldn't get," replied Jimmie briefly, annoyed by the other's tone. He paused deliberately to let his annoyance become apparent and then added: "I was unfortunately detained by the unexpected."

The close-set eyes on either side of the large nose studied him for a minute. Then Neasden replied with a laugh: "It doesn't matter. We shouldn't have had time to talk." He remained standing. "As a matter of fact, I haven't any time now. I * * * something has made me rather busy today."

The waiter appeared, placed the bill of fare on the table and hopefully pulled out a chair, but Neasden waved him impatiently out of the room.

"Before I go," he continued, "Have you thought about our proposal?"

"I have."

"Well, do you wish to come in with us?"

Jimmie decided the moment was ripe to explain politely that he could not join. He opened his mouth to do so and then something happened which made him shut it again. After a brief moment of furious thought he nodded pleasantly and said, "Of course I do," as though the idea of refusal had never been in his mind.

For in that brief moment his eye had fallen on the menu which the waiter had just placed between them. Something about it seemed familiar, yet he knew he had never entered the place. Then he had realized. At the bottom of the list of courses, under the sweet, the word "Cheese" was written in a round hand and in faint purple duplicating ink. In fact, the fragment of paper on which the all-important shorthand notes had been scribbled was a portion of a menu card exactly the same as the one before him. His brain worked rapidly. In a flash he realized that the dead man must have visited this very restaurant on the night of his death, that there was probably a clue to be picked up by discreet inquiries in this secretive-looking upper room. Yet if he said "No" to Neasden, it would be difficult, if not dangerous, for him to continue to visit the place, after having refused to join the syndicate.

So he had nodded pleasantly and had said: "Of course I do."

It was not till after he had committed himself that he realized that in his eagerness to probe the mystery of the Murchison sighter, he had involved himself, definitely with this No. 1 and his burglary syndicate. In fact, he had apparently let himself in for playing a game of deception. But the chance had been too good to miss. In no other way could he have been so free to visit without comment both the Coin de Paradis and Jewel court, between the pair of which he was convinced some clue to the mystery would come to light. The risk was certainly worth taking.

Orders From No. 1

Neasden, who had evidently guessed nothing of Jimmie's rapid thoughts was continuing surprisingly: "I'm afraid I lied to you yesterday when I told you high-class burglary was our game."

Jimmie stared in amazement. He had not expected this.

"That was No. 1's order in case we couldn't trust you," explained Neasden. "No. I leave little to chance and we don't like traitors, though we have drastic methods with them if necessary. Without boasting, I may say, the methods are very satisfactory."

Jimmie found himself murmuring assent, though his heart had begun to beat rapidly at the word traitor. For a moment he felt inclined to back out before it was too late. Then he recollected that after all he was not really intending to play the traitor. By the 19th his own job would be settled one way or the other and he could consider Neasden's proposals—even though for the next week he had to avoid taking a definite part.

"However," Neasden was saying, "we will discuss our plans tomorrow night. I dine here most nights—though tonight I have other arrangements."

"Am I to meet this No. 1?" asked Jimmie curiously.

"I'm afraid not. He prefers to remain unknown for the time." He turned, paused as if he had remembered something and came back.

"We shall all be very glad of your help." He spoke as if Jimmie were contributing to a charity. "Your skill and knowledge will be of inestimable value to our party."

When he had gone, Jimmie sat back and considered this strange, loose-limbed man with the pedantic method of speech. He was certainly cultivating a pose, cultivating, too, an obvious flattery. Jimmie did not like him. He was clever underneath; and yet he was not the leader. Again he found himself wondering who No. 1 might be, the organizer of this mysterious syndicate.

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

IT was so warm today it was almost a thaw. The sun came out after I had let Jubilee down by the rope in his teeth and shone on the snow, and there wasn't any wind and the top of the snow was like diamonds and made a fella's eyes ache. All of the bunch had came over and were in our barn before I got done milking and we were all hollering and pointing the broom at each other and making out like we were Feeble's father and it was a gun. Nibs had went up on the track where my unkle had got rid of his skates by kicking them off against the railroad track, and one of them was broke in two. Feeble was pretty slick to tell her father that my unkle wanted to buy his gun and to get her father to bring it down to the pond whilst my unkle was there.

I was thinking about that whilst I was feeding my face this morning and then a knock came on the door, and my father got up and opened the door and there was Maggie and Younise and Feeble, and Feeble's father and his gun. My unkle was setting with his back to the door, and he had looked around to see who was at the door, and when he seen he let out a yelp like a dog and went up and acrost the table and into the kitchen and then we heard the door slam and he was gone! Feeble's father and all came in and everybody was talking like a lot of geese, but finely everything was straightened out and everyone understood what it was all about, and Feeble stood there looking crosseyed. I thought maybe her father was going to lick her, but everyone began to laugh, and pretty soon we are all hollering and Annabelle Lee was hammering her plate with her spoon

When I got home from school and went in to warm my hands my ant had got an electric curler and was giving herself a permanent wave and Annabelle Lee was setting in the floor chewing the electrick cord, and pretty soon she let out a yell, and the cord was wet and smoking where she had chewed it, but my mother couldn't find that her mouth or lip was burnt, so she said she must have got a shot. I got one once by poking my thumb in a socket and they ain't funny. It feels like someone had mashed your thumb with a hammer, but there ain't any mark on it. Annabelle Lee must have felt like she had put her tongue in a socket.

Feeble is a good sport. We all thought she wasn't when we thought she had told her father about getting spanked, but when we found she hadn't told we were proud of her. Younise told our teacher, and she said Feeble's folks would never raise her—she was too smart to live. I bet she does live and I bet I do too. My unkle is not back yet from wherever he went.

Love's Reawakening

A Wife's Triumph Over Jealousy

BY ADELE GARRISON

Madge Discloses Her Plan to Dicky and Finds a Willing Ally

I DID not keep Dicky waiting an instant when he asked me what his part was in my scheme for keeping Junior and Roderick busy during the holiday vacation the Harrison boys were to spend with us. I had evolved my plan during the minutes that I had waited while our two absurd little "gamecocks" as Dicky had dubbed them—were revolving their sins in their minds and were preparing to do penance for them.

"You have a very big part in the plans," I told him promptly. "So has Father. But I want to get your approval first before approaching him."

"Yes, you're very wise there," my husband told me, soberly but with mischievous eyes. "Your father is so stern so adamant especially to any requests of yours, that I do not wonder you want my moral support in tackling him. But I fear nobody, not even my father-in-law. I'll travel ahead, brave his wrath and try to get the scepter held out to you."

The only response I made to this rodomontade was to wrinkle my nose at him derisively, for he knows as well as I how eagerly indulgent my father is to any request of mine.

"I warn you," I went on, as if he had not spoken, "that it will take some of your money and more of your time before Christmas. Of course I'm going to pay part of it, and I'll be able to save you a lot of time, too, but——"

"I'll accept the time," Dicky said grinning, though there was a decisive note in his voice, "but the money—nothing doing. I'm still able to provide a Christmas surprise for my son and my nephews without taking your money, unless, of course, you're planning to build a Yale bowl for their future pugilistic contests."

There was an unpleasant and bitter note in his voice as he uttered the phrase "your money," which rankled even though he quickly camouflaged it by his nonsensical guess as to my plan. I knew so well what the reason was for his rancor. It was the same feeling which had led him to resent almost openly Philip Veritzen's gifts to Junior following the child's fall from the tree. He could not bear to have any part of Junior's Christmas paid for by the money which I had earned in Philip Veritzen's employ.

Madge Explains Her Plan

He had given me a way out, however, and with a light laugh which I flattered myself contained no betrayal that I had recognized his jealousy, I answered the latter part of his sentence.

"But something like that is just what I am planning. You know when Father put in the new heating plant here, and built in a billiard room in the basement, there was a large space left unfinished?"

Dicky's eyes opened wide.

"Well! I'll be saved by grace," he exclaimed. "You are flying high."

"Not so high but what I can reach the ground again," I told him smiling. "But I do want that space finished off before Christmas—the cement floor is already there—and one of the chimneys goes down there so that a primitive fireplace won't be much to manage.

"I want housing for several activities there," I continued. You know it really is an immense space—for which we can thank the original owners of this rambling old house——"

"Yes, they either must have been smugglers or stored away many barrels of liquor in their time," he commented.

"First," I went on, ignoring his interruption, "I want a corner with real work benches and real tools, four of them, two larger than the others, but no more complete."

"You're evidently planning to include Hank and Bill in this scheme for making idle hands safe—from Satan," Dicky gibed.

"Yes, I am," I returned, "and they sorely need something to do. I overheard them planning to 'get their guns' tomorrow and go hunting."

"The little devils!" he exclaimed, "Where in the world did they get guns? I wonder if they're real ones or air rifles. Harriet would never stand for their having shotguns. But perhaps Edwin slipped them to the boys. He's a victim of suppressed ruffianism, old Ned. Harriet's a wonderful wife and if she hadn't cushioned the corners for him all these years in the way she has, he'd never have the place in the surgical world he has. But she hasn't much love for the accomplishments of life in the great open spaces where men are men and all the rest of it."

Something clicked in my brain and I remembered my resolute denial of Dicky's plan to get Junior an air rifle. Was I also inducing a "suppressioned ruffianism" in my husband?

I made a sudden resolve, uttered it quickly before I should repent of it.

"I don't know why they shouldn't go hunting," I said. "If you'll go along and look after them. But I'd like to have them put it off until after Christmas, for I think Junior is old enough now to have an air rifle, and if Roderick hasn't one, we could get one for him also for Christmas.

When Your Cough Hangs On, Mix This at Home

The best cough remedy that money could buy, can easily be mixed at home. It saves money and gives you the most reliable, quick-acting medicine you ever used. The way it takes hold of stubborn coughs and chest colds, giving immediate relief, is astonishing.

Any druggist can supply you with 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle, and fill up with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. It's no trouble at all to mix, and when you once use it, you will never be without it. Keeps perfectly and tastes good—children really like it.

It is surprising how quickly this loosens the germ-laden phlegm, and soothes and heals the inflamed membranes. At the same time, part of the medicine is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes, and helps the system throw off the whole trouble. Even those severe coughs which follow cold epidemics, are promptly ended.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form. Nothing known in medicine is more helpful in cases of severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

Broadway Stars

pass merciless CLOSE-UP TEST

Like 9 out of 10 screen stars, they have long kept their skin at its best with Lux Toilet Soap . . .

GERTRUDE LAWRENCE (Candle Light) says: "I'm enthusiastic about it."

MARILYN MILLER (Sally) says: "It keeps my skin satin-smooth."

BEATRICE LILLIE, delightful comedienne, is devoted to Lux Toilet Soap.

CLAUDETTE COLBERT (See Naples and Die) "Keeps my skin so smooth!"

WINNIE LIGHTNER says: "It cares for my skin so perfectly! I love it."

BOBBE ARNST says: "It is certainly a marvelously delicate soap."

RUTH CHATTERTON, much beloved star, says: "Lux Toilet Soap leaves one's skin so smooth!"

MARY EATON, charming star, says: "Lux Toilet Soap keeps my skin always beautifully fine and smooth."

THE moment the talkies "arrived," many of the most famous stars of the Broadway stage were signed by the great motion picture studios. Then, under the glare from the huge incandescent close-up lights, they faced the cruelest test a skin can possibly meet.

Unless their skin showed alluringly smooth and fine on the screen, they could scarcely hope to "get across" in talking and singing pictures.

These Broadway stars passed the test, needless to say. Theirs was the flawlessly smooth skin demanded for the innumerable close-ups of sound pictures. And never were they more appreciative of the gentle care Lux Toilet Soap has given their skin.

For long ago the famous women of the theater made Lux Toilet Soap their own. Long ago it was made the official soap in 71 of the 74 legitimate theaters in New York alone—and in other leading theaters throughout the country.

Hollywood found out years ago that no girl ever becomes a motion picture star unless her skin shows perfect on the screen. That is why, of the 521 important actresses in Hollywood, including all stars, 511 are devoted to Lux Toilet Soap. It keeps the skin lovely and smooth as a flower petal.

It was at the request of the actresses themselves that all the great film studios have made this white, delicately fragrant soap official in their dressing rooms.
